WASHINGTON, Dec. 5-Bert Lance, that he did not believe that it would be rector-designate of the Office of Man-possible to reduce the rate to 6.5 percent by the end of the year.

It was to an explicit question about the prospects of reaching the 6.5 percent rate that he replied that reaching such a rate would be "very, very difficult."

Mr. Lance repeatedly referred to 6.5 percent unemployment by the end of 1977 as a "goal" rather than an objective he expected to reach.

Mr. Lance did not discuss at any length Mr. Carter's plans for a tax reduction or other action to stimulate the economy. He did indicate that he expected a tax reduction to he only one element in Mr. Carter's overall economic program.

Mr. Lance, when questioned about Mr. Cartet's emphasis on reorganizing the Government, explained that he did not expect the reorganization to reduce either the number of jobholders or the size of government expenditures.

What he is hoping for, he said, is that the size of the Government will stop growing so that the same number of people who work for the Government now will be able to scree a larger nation. He expressed these views on "Face the Nation," on CBS.

Agreement with Mr. Lance that Government reorganization did not hold out the prospect of major savings in expenditures was expressed on another television

ELECTION TALLY INCOMPLETE

All Opposition Parties in Country Gain Except the Communists-Premier May Lose Post

> By ANDREW H. MALCOLM ecial to The New York Tomes

TOKYO, Monday, Dec. 6-Japan's governing Liberal-Democratic Party, faced with the most severe electoral test in its 21-year bistory, was on the verge today of losing its majority in the lower bouse of Parliament.

With 457 of the expanded lower house's 511 seats decided, the Liberal Democrats had won only 230 seats in yesterday's election. Computer projections of the still-uncounted results from the nationwide balloting forecast that the governing conservative party would probably win only 246 seats. That is far fewer than the 271 necessary for them to bave firm control of the lower house and all its committees, a measure of power that conservatives have enjoyed for all but a year or so of the post-World War II period.

In the recently ended Parliament, the Liberal Democratic Party held 265 of the

Of the five opposition parties, all but the Communists scored gains in yesterday's voting. According to the incomplete tallies, the most impressive increases were made by the Buddhist-oriented Komeito, or Clean Government Party, which had won 44 seats, the Democratic Socialists, who won 24, and a new splinter conservative group, the New Liberal Club, which had won 15 seats.

The American-led expedition that endary phenomenon. A few tantalizing clues, perhaps, but nothing was found that was any more cooclusive than the occasional "sightings" and blurry photo-graphs that have long fired imaginations and mobilized all manner of searches.

Leaders of the expedition described their findings and nonfindings in interviews and in reports to be published today in the December issue of Technology Review, a publication edited at the Mas-sachusetts institute of Technology.

The expedition, directed by Dr. Robert H. Rines of Boston, was the most ambi-tious and technologically sophisticated of the many investigations of the Loch Ness mystery. It was sponsored by the Acad-emy of Applied Science, a Boston-based group of engineers and inventors, and The New York Times.

Array of Underwater Cameras

Beginning in June engineers and scien-tists from the Uoited States, Canada and Britain monitored the murky waters of the lake with an array of underwater cameras, hoping to get pictures that would make identification possible. In of the supposedly extinct sea-going repaddition, sonar systems were deployed to detect moving objects and to survey the lake bottom for possible carcasses or locked after the last ice age.

Charles W. Wyckoff of Applied Photo Sciences, Inc., the expedition's chief of photographic operations, reported that oot a single large creature was seen oo any of the 108,000 pictures taken. Indeed, only 33 of the pictures showed fish or

The dearth of fish seemed unusual and possibly important. Mr. Wyckoff said, adding: "We theorize that the severe drought in the British Isles had lowered the level of the loch so much that the usual salmon spawning runs were not taking place, and there were no salmon in the shallow areas of the loch to briog the animal up from its usual depths to

Nothing on the Film

During the fall sonar-activated cameras were left submerged from a raft in Urquhart Bay. A computer attached to the sonar device was set so that objects over a certain size moving into the sonar beam would trigger the camera to begin taking elapsed-time pictures. About a month ago, when Scottish members of the expedition checked the system, they reported that something had triggered the camera to expose 10 feet of film, or 400 pictures.

Mr. Wyckoff rushed back to Scotland

Mr. Wyckoff rushed back to Scotland and had the film processed. Nothing. The computer had malfunctioned and transmitted spurious signals. He took the computer to Boston to be repaired.

"I'm disappointed, yes, but not discouraged," Mr. Wyckoff commented. "I'm still convinced in my own mind that there's something there."

The soner investigations proved some-

In the report for Technology Review, Martin Klein and Charles Finkelstein of Klein Associates, Inc., an underwater exploration company, said that "much to our amazement, every area we searched revealed targets of interest."

The sonar investigations proved some status gights in the late spring to investigation the possibility of using a manued submersible to explore other sonar findings, particularly the carcasslike shape.

Many of the "targets" were shipwrecks, downed airplanes and stones of possible archeological importance, but a few warrant further investigation, the sonar ex-

In the shallow waters of Dores Bay, for example, the sonar discovered a humplike formation on the bottom. The hump seemed to bave a series of "regular riblike ridges to it." A monster carcass?

After diving to investigate, Mr. Finkel-stein reported: "The formation turned out to be clay, however, it was later pointed out that the clay could have overlain another, more solid structure beneath the

Off Lochend, at the northeastern end of Loch Ness, the sonar picked up a number of traces of circular patterns. Divers confirmed that they were circles of stooes 15 to as much as 150 feet in diameter. In Borlum Bay, near Fort Augustus, a the southwestern end of the lake, the sonar surveyors, on ooe of their last runs of the summer, detected traces unlike anything else they had seen on the lake bottom. Mr. Klein and Mr. Finkelstein described the target as a "carcass-like shape with a long necklike projec-tion" and estimated that it was 30 feet

"Of course, it would be wild specu tion to make any assumptions about this target without further investigation," the report said. "An underwater television or a small submersible would probably be needed for identification at this depth [300 feet]. We named this target the Average Plesiosaur to tease our paleon-tologist friends."

Survivors of Ancient Reptiles

One of the most appealing theories m Lock Ness lore is that the large treatures, if they exist, could be survivors

With another sonar system, which cast an underwater radio beam from Temple Pier, the expedition's base on Urouhart Bay, Dr. Harold E. Edgerton noted "sonar traces of large objects moving under-water" on June 30 and July 1. He described the June 30 sighting as follows: "After about a minute of movement inwerd, the object slowed and stopped presenting a target width of 10 feet. After ebout one minute of rest, 250 feet from the cameras, the object departed with about the same velocity, but with slight hesitation after about one minute of movement. Also on this record can be seen two small signals, which could be reflections of disturbed fish."

Since the objects never got close enough to the submerged cameras, no identification was possible.

Sizable Object Detected

On another foray, in July, Dr. Rines said that the sonar detected a sizable object that moved into range, paused for a few minutes and then disappeared. The contact coincided with "chirplike or rattlelike sounds" 'picked up by hydro phones.

Though the monster remains as elusive

as ever, leaders of the expedition, undaunted and still professing faith in the existence of something large and myste-rious in the dark waters of Loch Ness, are making plans for cext year.

In January or February, Dr. Rines said he intends to resume the photographic search with the soner-computer camera system. The plan is to send down divers equipped with the television cameras and strong lights in the late spring to investigate the stone circles. Dr. Rines also said that be was investigating the possibility

After more than six years of trying. Dr. Rines remained optimistic, declaring: "We'll be at it until we get results."

Mr. Romulo said that he met with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger last week in Mexico City to give his Government's reply to a Kissinger pro-posal for United States military and economic aid totaling $1 billion over five years, $500 million io military aid and $500 million in economic aid.

He said that he informed Mr. Kissinger that the Philippine Government was prepared to accept $1 billion in military aid over that period with economic aid to be negotiated separately.

"The Secretary just nodded," Mr.
Romulo said, speaking in a telephone interview from New York, where he is attending the United Nations General Assembly. Mr. Romulo returned to New York on Friday and he said that he was "amazed" when he was met at the airport by a State Department official who presented State Department official who presented him with a draft agreement containing the same provisions he had rejected in his meeting with Mr. Kissinger. He said that the State Department wanted the draft signed yesterday.

PLAINS, Ga., Dec. 5 (AP)—Presidentelect Jimmy Carter said today that he had not decided whether to broaden the blanket pardon he promised to give draft evaders of the Vietnam war perind.

"We're trying to decide how to word the pardon," Mr. Carter said as he chatted with reporters after leaving worship services at the Plains Baptist Church.

Five men stood outside the church with placards that called on Mr. Carter to give damesty to all Vietnam war resisters, no matter what laws they had violated.

And Rabbi Meir Kahane, head of the Jewish Defense League, appeared with several other men to read a statement urging Mr. Carter and all "born again" christians to support the atate of Israel and to make sure that Israel is allowed

Europe and Carter

West's Leaders Growing Anxious for Signs Of Administration's Plans Before Inaugural

By FLORA LEWIS

European leaders have come out publicly dent-elect Carter. This slight breach of protocol, in advance of the inauguration reflects the intensity of the Europeans'

sense of need to know Washington's intentions, and indeed of their dependence on the plans and policies of the United States. It is a rather drastic reversal of European attitudes from only two or three years ago. It showed clearly at the recent Common Market meeting at The Hague: Instead of talking about estabishment of European policies—which implies decisions made before consultation with the United States—and European power in the world, as the did in their winter meetings of 1972, 1973 and 1974. the Europeans decided in effect that they could not do anything until they heard from the United States.

The appointment of Cyrus R. Vance as the Carter Secretary of State was a reas-surance to the Europeans. But govern-ments still feel blocked until they learn how the new administration is going to behave on oil prices, energy policy, raw-materials prices, relations with the third world, Eurocommunism and a host of other pressing issues. The most important perhaps, is the domestic economic policy.

"What we want to know more than anything is wbether Mr. Carter is going to stimulate the U. S. economy or not," foreign-policy questions will matter, of course, but our own economic measures at bome are going to depend a lot on the American market and its impact oo world trade."

Sensitivity to American plans is greater now in Europe than at almost any time since the period immediately following World War II, when there was a feeling of almost helpless dependency. It used to be said in the late 1940's and early 50's that "When the U.S. sneezes, Europe catches pneumonia."

. It is no longer such a one-way situation. But the awareness of world economic trouble that no single industrial state or any small group of states can handle alone has gradually become acute. Chancellor Helmit Schmidt of West Germany, feeling more secure than his European partners and yet most buffeted by their demands on his country's relatively strong economy, has been the most outspoken about the absolute requirement for full European cooperation with the United States.

Hopes of Portugal and Spain

Some other European leaders, recogniz-ing, however sadly, their marginal weight in shaping the grand-strategy decisions ahead, have focused on narrower interests of direct importance to their own-countries as they await Washington's voice—although they, too, are immediate-ly concerned with global issues.

Thus Prime Minister Mário Soares said recently that he hoped the new American administration would go through with the substantial aid program for Portugal, not only because the economic support was essential but because of its political impli-

"It's an American bet on our democraan attempt to asphyxiate us, like Chile and everybody will understand that so it will bring confidence from others."

Spain's Socialist leader, Felipe Goozález, was less sanguine in his bopes about American policy in Spaio, but he said. It will make quice a conference if there is just a feeling that the U. S. isn't going to try to block democratization." The key problem, in the eyes of the Spanish political opposition, is whether or not the United Staates takes a stand, bowever privately, against legalizing the Commu-

> Italy, whose Prime Minister Giulio Andreotti rushed to Washington last week without waiting for formalities, is also bolding its breath almost as much on the issue of Eurocommunism as on crucial money matters. In a behind-the-scenes way, Mr. Andreotti is already working with the Italian Communists.

But Washington's stand on a more open and visibly responsible arrangement will be of great importance to Italian politics. and, in consequence, to Italy's chance of a successful economic austerity program. Israeli leaders, preparing for negotia-tions with the Arabs that seem more and more likely to come in early spring, are always extremely concerned about Washington's views. At the moment they want above all to be assured that they will be consulted before new policies are

Economics Is the Main Concern

The higgest question marks, however, are economic, and that is the underlying reason for the shift in Europe's attitude. It stems from the 1973 oil crisis. First there was panic, then a frantic attempt, led by the French, to seek special relations with and therefore special freat-ment from the Arabs. Then came a calmer period. Governments began negotiations about oil and other raw materials, developed domestic economic-recovery pro-grams and teoded to feel that the worst

Now that is seen as an illusion. In the leaders' view, the basic structural changes in world economic affairs that were precipitated by the oil crisis are coming into focus. For one thing, the financial disruption called by the sudden multiplication of oil prices is now believed to have been more or less solved by the United States, and by scarcely

The relatively poor third-world countries have become perilously poorer, with vastly soaring debts they cannot manage.

U.S. Itself Held Overstretched Even the United States, whose plan for "recycling petrodollars" brought in enough oil money to leave its payments In fair shape, is now what many bankers consider a dangerously over-stretched creditor to borrowers who won't be able to pay. "The fact is," a banker said, "the Arabs sent us the money, all right, for us to loan out. But they are assured of the income and we're taking all the

Meanwhile, there is pressure from the oil producers for the industrial countries, on pain of having to pay much more for their oil, to make far-reaching concessions to the developing countries as part

The major Western Beropean govern-ments have given up the idea of trying first to work out a Common Market policy in response, since it is now obvious to them that it won't work except in tandem with the rest. Foreign Minister "It's an American bet on our democra-cy," he said. "It means there won't be that the Netherlands would take a stand favoring the third world oo its own. But now even the Dutch have decided to "reconsider" such an ideological luxury and see what the others do.

France, which insisted in laonching the North-South conference to work out a new world economic order" in the first place, has muffled its voice and is concentrating on critical domestic political and economic maneuvers until the Atlantic horizon is clearer.

It adds up to a greatly increased, and perceived. United States responsibility and state in the well-being of the West. "Give them time, let them figure out their plans," Chancellor Schmidt was overheard grumbling to European colleagues who were impatient for answers from America.

servative independent indicted in the Lockheed scandal.

The voter turnout was beavy. An average of 73 percent of the eligible voters have gone to the polls in postwar elections bere. There were 77.8 million eligible to participate in yesterday's election, which cost the government almost $60million to conduct

From the smallest farm hamlet to the nation's largest city, the voters in Japan's 130 electoral districts trooped to the poliing places carrying the postcard voting tickets they received in the mail last week. In schools, auditoriums and community halls, they weited patiently in fast-moving lines to receive their two paper ballots. A gay community spirit

On one ballot, as a result of a postwar law imposed by American occupation authorities, the voters could make an "X" mark next to the name of any Supreme Court justice whose record they deemed unsatisfactory. So far, no judge has ever been given a majority and been recalled as a result of such a vote.

On the other blank sheet, the voter wrote the first and last names of his or her favored candidate. Any significant mismarking invalidated the ballot

The papers were deposited in separate locked boxes and the hand counting began in some districts late last night. omplete results for the entire nation take 24 hours to compile. As in other countries that operate on parliamentary system of government, ach Japanese votes for only one candidate to represent his local district, a provision that often plays down national issues, especially in the well-organized rural areas that have been the foundation of the conservatives' long political rule. But 76 percent of Japan's 112 million people now live in urban areas, where the four major opposition parties have grown

In the recently ended Parliament, the first to run its full four-year term since the end of the war, the Socialists were the largest opposition party with 112 seats: They were followed by the Communists with 39, the Komeito with 30, and the Democratic Socialists.

A new opposition party, the New Liberparty to form a conservative alternative. Polls had indicated that their calls for conservative revitaliaztion might bring a doubling of their membership in Parlia-

Even without these dissatisfied former members, the Liberal-Democrats entered the election badly divided over the leaderveteran whose ability to survive tough

His opponents are led by Mr. Fukuda, 71, a former Deputy Prime Minister and Foreign Minister, who heads the largest faction among the Liberal-Lemocrats. The party is actually a coalition of conservative factions that often expend more effort opposing one another than opposing other partles.

The conservatives' support among voters has been dwindling in recent elections, the result of migration from rural to urban areas and of a growing dissatisfaction with the party's long rule. In recent general elections it fell below the 50 percent level. This year's revelations of the multimillion-dollar Lockheed Aircraft bribery scandal, which led to the arrest of several prominent conservative politicians, including former Prime Minister Tanaka, have been expected to damage the party further.

"The Japanese people are very much interested in the Lockheed scandal," said Toru Nishihara, a 49-year-old office worker, as he cast his hallot 'yesterday. "In this election there are many votes critical of the Liberal-Democrats."

Mr. Nishihara voted against the conser-vatives this time. He and his wife, Kuni, who live in Yokosuka, a naval hase city 35 miles southwest of Tokyo, both voted for the Democratic Socialist candidate, Eki Sone.

The Nishibaras discussed the political issues together in recent weeks. They listened politely to their neighbors who sought support for other parties. But they chose the Democratic Socialists because, as Mr. Nishihara put it, "they are opposition but not so radical that we are uncomfortable."

Their neighbors, the Nagashimas, had also grown unhappy with the Liberal-Democrats. Hidejl Nagashima voted for the Democratic Socialists, but his wife, "Masako, chose the conservative alternative, the New Liberal Club's candidate, Seichi Tagawa. "I am not supporting that man so much as I am criticizing the Liberal-Democrats for Lockheed and all the other scandals," Mrs. Nagasbima said. "I may return to the L.D.P. in the future but that is only a possibility."

Why is a Kahn ham so out of the ordinary? Why do food writers, home economists, chefs of all stripes tip their toques blanches to this pampered ham with the unforgettable flavor and bouquet? To start, Macy's exclusive packer selects only the finest blockyshaped, lightweight hams - between 11 and 14: pounds - before processing. Then they are pre-cooked, and slowly and lightly cured. Hickory smoking comes next in a smokehouse reserved just for us. So we can control the heat, humidity and even the smoke to turn out the kind of ham your quests will talk about long after the meal is over. After smoking, curing and pre-cooking, they are quick-chilled to keep every bit of delicate hickory flavor where it belongs. In the ham.

And what a surprise when you unwrap one of our Kahn hams. The first thing you notice is its color — a beautiful golden caramel — a color that turns to a gorgeous bronze with basting and baking. And its aroma. So sweet and pungent. Then you notice how little fat there is. These hams are trimmed, then trimmed again. So all you pay for is the lean meat and not the fat. Now that's true value and economy because there's never a bit of waste. As you can well imagine, it costs money to produce a ham like this, what with all the extra care. extra attention, extra love it gets every step of the way. But we're convinced it's worth every penny of its 2.19 a pound. And you will, too.

the same lines, I'm oot in a position to say. No ooe really is today. But it would be unfair to say that the Communists would not continue along those lines."

Mr. Andreotti will spend the night in New York and then go to Washington tomorrow for talks with various officials including President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who has repeatedly expressed coocern over the rise of the Communist Party io Italy.

The Prime Minister will also become the first foreign head of government to meet members of the incoming Carter administration. Mr. Andreotti is scheduled to see Vice President-elect Walter Moodale and is seeking an appointment with Cyrus R. Vance, who will be the new Secretary of State.

Asking Aid From U.S. and Europe

A main topic will be Italy's economic prospects and its need for up to $1 billion from the International Monetary Fund as well as credits from the United States.

Italy is going through a bad time now with inflation running at just under 20 percent, a huge balance of payments defi-cit and a surplus of foreign debts coming

"I want officials in Washingtoo to believe in Italy," he said. "We've done much in the past 30 years and I believe we are capable of resolving our problems. We oeed credits to allow us time to get back on our feet. We have asked our feet. We have asked our European partners and we ask the United States to give us a hand."

Although he said the economy was now more important than the Communist issue, officials of the present and incoming administrations in Washington are expected to be particularly interested in the Prime Minister's assessment of the Communist Paster's assessment of the Communist Paster of the Communist P munist Party.

Some Concern in His Party

Its influence is growing daily because of its strength in Parliament and its control of many local administratioos. Mr. Andreotti, who leads a one-party minority Government, relies oo the Communist Party to stay io power. The Communists stopped voting against the Government after the June elections and began to abstain in crucial votes. stain in crucial votes.

His own Foreign Minister, Arnaldo Forlani, appears to be among those worried about the trends uoder Mr. Aodreotti. Mr. Forland decided not to go to Washington, saying that other business forced him to cancel. Others suggested the Minister wanted to take his distance from what he regarded as the Prime Minister's "soft"

Kind Words for Berlinguer

In the interview, Mr. Andreotti linked he solution to the economic crisis to the chances of the Communist's sharing power. He said the "more this Government succeeds, the less the need will be felt for an alternative" that would include the Commuoists.

the Communists.

The Prime Minister agreed that advances by the Communists into the government itself might generate some confusion io Italy. He said there were still "fears of dictatorship" among the Italians opposed to the Communist Party.

His own view was that the Communists, who stress independence from Moscow and their belief in a multi-party system for Italy, bave come a long way. He had some kind words to say about Enrico Berlinguer, the Communist Party leader. He ooted that the Communist Party has not opposed Italy's loyalty to the Common Market and the Atlantic alliance and bas "in oo way impeded the Government's austerity program."

austerity program."

Asked whether he thought the Communists would change once they began to share power, Mr. Andreotti said that ooly time would tell.

"We have to look at various things to determine what their final attitude will be." he said. "I don't believe that there is any pretense in the political line that Berlinguer has begun. I don't think that the present leaders are incipeant when the present leaders are insincere when they say they want to build something different.

Less Coocerned About Moscow

"The problem of independence from Moscow is not the most worrisome to me. It is the problem of whether they really carry out an evolution toward a different Communism, a Communism dif-ferent from that in the Soviet Union. The Albanian Communists don't depend on Moscow, but they give no sign of wanting ed create a different type of political sys-

While Mr. Andreotti is having difficulty within his own party for this kind of approach toward the Communists, there are those who believe he is engaged in a clever exercise actually designed to keep the Communists from Cabinet seats. The argument is that Mr. Andreotti is buying time to repair the economy and his own party's image in hopes of doing better in the next elections. In short, some argue, he is taking a relatively soft line to avoid an open struggle with the Communist Party that could lead to social chare.

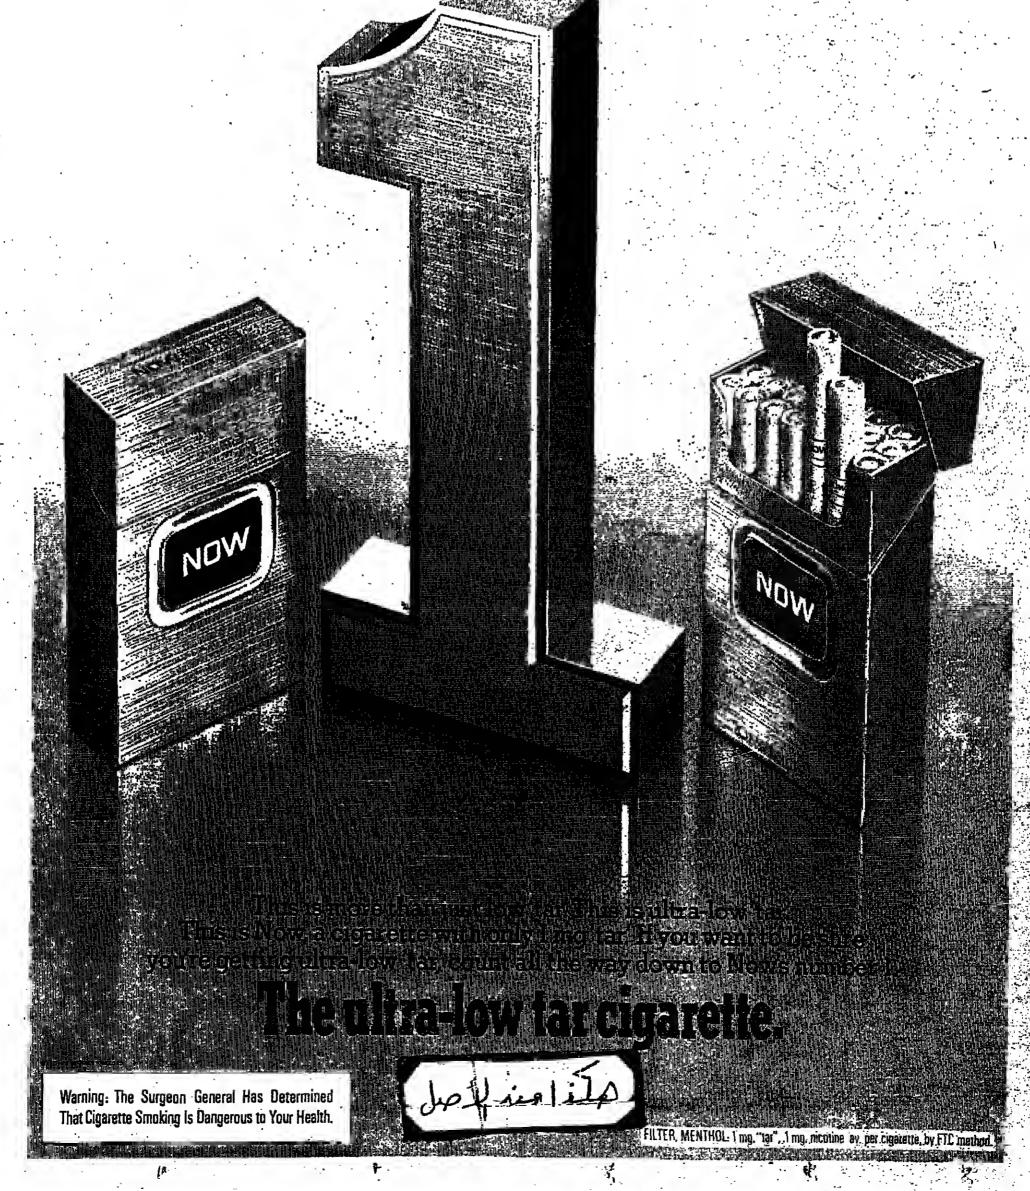

As for his own party, Mr. Andreotti has adopted a style shaped to convince the Italians that it, too, has been changing. He has gone on live television, which was rare for a Prime Minister in Italy and he has given the impression of work ing hard.

His immediate problem, bowever, is the economy. And it is too early to say whether he will find the solution to that one, with or without American aid.

How to Become a Pariah in Today's China: Just Hail From Shanghai

By FOX BUTTERFIELD Special to The New York Times

HONG KONG, Dec. 5-In the United States, it is New Yorkers who seem to arouse scorn in other parts of the country. In China, it is residents of Shanghai who have become the object of dislike and even discrimination. The reason, according to the travelers, is that Shanghai was the home base of the now notorious "gang of four"-the Polithuro members, including Chiang Ching, Mao Tse-tung's widow, who were purged to October.

The three others-Chang Chun-chiao, Wang Hung-wen and Yao Wen-yuanrose to power in Shanghai and until their disgrace continued to hold the top posts in the city, the largest in China, with a population of 10 million. Miss Chiang made her name originally in Shanghai as a movie actress in the 1930's and later launched her own political career there in the Cultural

So strong was the association of the four with Shanghai that some foreign analysts jokingly called them the Shanghai mafia. Apparently it was no joke. Chinese sources say that many people in China referred to the four as the "Shanghai gang" long before their arrest.

With hometown representatives in such high places, many Shanghai residents—who regarded themselves as the most sophisticated people in China anyway-evidently behaved with arro-gance when traveling around the coun-try. Resentment against them reached a peak in the spring after the Shanghai daily Wen Hui Pao published articles critical of Chou En-lai.

Vegetable Supply Cut Back

Three nearby provinces—Anhwei, Kiangsu and Chekiang—reportedly cut back on the meat and vegetables they supplied to Shangbai. As a result, meat rationing had to be introduced in Shanghai, though it is common in other, less privileged cities.

According to Chinese sources, restaurants to other cities often refused to serve Shanghai customers, who were easy to spot by their accents and their smartly tailored tunics.

In one case, a traveler related, he was standing at the front desk of a hotel in Nanking when a Shanghai man arrived and asked for a room. When the clerk heard he was from Shanghai, he replied that there were no vacan-

Hua Kuo-feng, the party chairman, has reportedly ordered an end to this discrimination, saying it is unfair to the majority of the people of Shanghai. One of his first actions was to declare that the term "Shanghai gang" should be replaced by the epithet "gang of four," which has been ascribed to Mao

Exactly how and wby Mr. Hua moved so decisively against the four, after 10 years of political wrangling, is a matter only historians may eventually unravel. But in the meantime, with many Chinese in an ebullient mood, enough information is leaking out to sate the most voracious analyst.

To cite one example, analysts have long wondered which official controlled access to Mao in his last years, when age and poor health made him suscepti-ble to manipulation by those around

The person to whom the job fell, or who seized it, Chinese sources say, was Mao Yuan-hsin, Mao's nephew. who was an associate of the group of four. According to one informant, in the last year the younger Mao bad vir-tually total control over all people and documents that the chairman saw.

If this is true, it may explain why Mao did not act to stop any intrigues of the four, though he is now officially said to bave been aware of them.

In any case, the nephew, who was nominally a party secretary in the Man-churian province of Liaoning, is said to have been arrested along with the four and perhaps 30 other officials. He has not been publicly attacked, but a broadcast this week referred to "an agent of the gang of four in Liaoning" who had practiced "political humbug" hy publicizing a student who reportedly turned in a blank paper in 1973 as protest against education authorities.

The radio said the student had gotteo a failing grade on his university entrance exam and had appealed privately for help in gaining admission. With Mr. Mao's aid, the student, Chang Tiehsheng, became a celebrity and went on to be a member of the revolutionary. on to be a member of the revolutionary committee of Tiehling Agricultural College. He, too, has oow beeo reported

Beyond the new party chairman, the man who has gotten the most publicity thia year is Wu Teh, the 62-year-old leader of the city of Peking. It was Mr. Wu who gave the keynote ad-dress at the opening session of the Standing Committee of the National People'a Congress this week, just as be gave the main speech at a rally on Oct. 24 to celebrate Hua Kuo-feng's elevation to party chairman. Last April 5, it was Mr. Wu who apoke over loud-speakers around Tien An Men Square calling for 100,000 demonstrators to the selection of Mr. Wn to perform each of these tasks, based on his position as the municipal leader of Peking and the highest ranking member of the Standing Committee, which is the nominal lawmaking body between sessions of the full National People's Coogress. But the cumulative effect of his appearances suggests that Mr. Wu's star is rising. Some analysts surmise that he may be emerging as a senior spokesman for the leadership, a role ooce played by the disgraced head of state, Liu Shao-chi. Like Mr. Liu, Mr. Wu began his party career as a labor organizer, later serving as a political commissar with military units during World War II, then as party leader of the city of Tientsio and Manchuria's Kirin Prov-ince and finally, since the Cultural Revolution, as party leader of Peking.

Mr. Wu is the now the seventh ranking member in the Politburo. When the new leaders finally announce a new lineup, Mr. Wu seems a strong candidate to be made a member of the Politburo's Standing Committee, the inner circle, if not one of the deputy chair-meeting began.

The Mayor, Juan Arespacochaga, was greeted by leaders of Madrid's Jewish community of 4,000 at the center, which is in the same downtown building as the Madrid synagogue.

In his keynote address, Lord Fisher of England, the European chief of the Jewish congress, described the conference as the Jews' official return to Spain after their expulsion in 1492.

Fault a Sleeping Giant

The San Andreas has been a sleeping giant since it last heaved violently in Southern California in 1857. There have been a oumer of moderate-to-strong quakes in the last 109 years in the Los Angeles area, most recently the temblor that cost a moderate loss in property and lives in 1971, but they have occurred along secondary fault lines. The most destructive movement of the San Andreas was in the San Francisco earthquake of 1906, and that city's destruction has always lingered in the memory of those who live along its length.

Lioda Phillips, a young housewife, moved with her husband and young child last year to a home built oo an island of bedrock between two fault lines that run through the front and back yards. There are actually several fault lines.

"You can't go through life worrying about everything that can happen to you," she said. "I even keep my syrup bottles and glassware on the top shelf in the kitchen. You can't live with your life all packed up in hoxes."

Mr. Minturn himself bas heen reluctant to discuss his theories in detail and has not yet met requests by the United States

Geological Survey and the California Geologist's Office for data.

His predictions were based, he has explained, on an old concept: that the gravitational force of lunar tides "trigger" the release of the accumulated strain on continental plates. By tracking the moon's movements and identifying potential zones of weakness in the earth's crust around the globe, his observations combine "logical analysis" and "interior in the continental plates" in the earth's crust around the globe, his observations combine "logical analysis" and "interior" in the continental plates. When voters here go to the polls tomorrow to choose their new Mayor, they will find only two names oo the ballot-A. L. Blantoo, the incumbent, and Billy Carter. But e good case can be made that there should be three names on the ballot because, as they say in Plains these days, there are actually two Billy Carters.

The first Billy Carter is genuinely anti-establishment. As Brother Jimmy said recently while involved in the struggle to erase a white-only regula-tion from the bylaws of the Plains Baptist church: "Billy hasn't been to church in 20 years. But if we had a rule that said that people who sell beer couldn't get in. Billy would be the first to try." The other Billy Carter is a nervous. wheezing, five-packs-a-day achiever who seeks the $50-a-month Mayor's joh in this village of 700 farm folk because he worries about Plains's future now that a thousand tourists a day are barging in.

"I bate to see Plains change because it's bome," he said one recent morning as some of his buddles paraded about town in t-shirts emblazoned with "Elect Billy Carter Mayor." That is about the extent of the mayoral campaigning, except for a few telephone calls by each caodidate to remind friends that tomorrow is election day. The race is considered a toss-up.

Billy took on Mr. Blanton two years ago and lost by four votes-82 to 78. "We hoth agree on controlled growth," Mr. Blanton, an air traffic controller, said on the eve of the election. "Thet makes the only issue the fact that Billy wants to be Mayor and I want to be Mayor. Some folks say beer sales are the issue, bot we all know that property taxes would have to be raised if we cut out sales because the town gets 5 cents on the can." Enjoys His Drinking

Billy Carter sells beer at his gas station. He drinks it there, too, often by the six-pack.

"He really does enjoy his drinking and trading quips with his buidles and the oewsmen and tourists," Thomas Chandler, a long-time friend and business acquaintance, says. "But you bave to keep in mind that Billy's a mighty good actor.

"He's especially good to his wife and his kids, and he's pretty well run that family peanut business since his brother went ioto politics. I hardly know anybody who is harder working, more aggressive, more imaginative or a better dealer than he is. "He's smart, smart, smart, which is where a lot of folks get fooled."

Billy's mother, Lillian Carter, says he is "a good, hright boy who made, more A's in school than Jimmy and now watches over me." She adds, "He can hold his own. Don't get taken." "Mother taught us all to love books and reading," Billy says, "When I got out of high school, I went right into the Marines and theo I got married after that and never got io more than a year of college. But I went through balf a dozen newspapers e day and read everybody and everything from Faulkner to present best-sellers like 'Ragtime' and The Choir Boys'."

Buys Books in Atlanta

"I usually wake up in the middle of the night and don't drift off again for two or three hours," be continued.
"So I keep a stack of books by the bed, and every time I go up to Atlanta on business, I buy $30 or $40 worth

In his autohiography, "Why Not The Best?", Jimmy Carter acknowledged his hrother's contribution to his political-career and wrote appreciatively: "I realize that his willingness to operate our farms and warehouse has made it possible for me to bold public Billy says the President-elect has never seriously urged him to change his good-old-boy image in the interest of political appearances. For that matter, Jimmy Carter obviously enjoys his hrother's spirited company, so several times he makes a point of dropping by the peanut warehouse or the gas station for a long chat or a bite of barbecue.

Lillian Carter says the two brothers complement and "need" each other. But Billy does not want to carry that too far.

New York State Weighing a Pullout From Summer Lunch Program

By RICHARD J. MEISLIN

New York State education officials are ebating whether to withdraw from the Federal Government's summer program to feed needy children, and have held up publication of their 1977 management plans until a decision can be made by the Board of Regents.

"We would like to take the program on; we would like to see the children fed," said Theodore M. Black, chancellor of the Board of Regents. "But we have had a good many hangups that need cor-

Retirement money.

Now. Start with as little as $100. You'll get East River's highest interest rate plus special tax advantages. And retire richer than you ever dreamed possible.

Plan ! -- You Have No Pension Plan.

If there's no pension plan where you work, you can open an IRA account at East River and deposit, as a tax-savings deduction, 15% of your annual income (maximum $1,500 each person, or $3,000 for an eligible, employed couple). Both the money you contribute and the high annual interest earned are tax-free until retirement, when your tax bracket is likely to be lower.

Earn Maximum Interest With Minimum Deposit.

Start building your retirement money account immediately. Open your IRA account now with as little as $100 and begin earning East River's annual yield of 8.17% which is 7.75% a year compounded daily. And you can make deposits of $100 or more anytime during the year up to the maximum of $1,500 for each person. To qualify for this high rate, the money is required to be left on deposit in a savings certificate for a minimum of 6 years - maximum of 7 years. Other savings plans with shorter maturities are also available. However, interest rates and minimum deposit requirements vary with these alternative plans.

Special Combination IRA with Savings Bank Life Insurance Retirement Income Policy.

East River also has a special plan that combines Savings Bank Life Insurance with a high interest savings plan. This plan maximizes estate benefits in the event of your death or provides for annuity payments in your retirement years, starting as early as age 60, guaranteed for life! The insurance feature guarantees completion of that portion of the plan. Important ---disability benefits are available. Full details are available at any East River branch or call Alice Lyons at 374-4594,

'Backwash Squeeze' Explained In New Edition of Encyclopedia

By ALAN TRUSCOTT

"Official Encyclopedia of Bridge," originally published in 1964 under the editorship of Richard Frey and this writer, has been revised by Amalya Kearse of New York. one of the country's most talented young play-

Published by Crowo, $15.95, it has 858 pages about the game: biography, history, laws, hibliography, tournameot results, terminology, direction and technical material.

One of the numerous new articles in the book is the backwash squeeze, which was originally discovered by an Australian star, Tim Seres, and then analyzed in detail in The Bridge World magazine by Geza Ottlik of Hungary, one of the leading authorities on card play.

In the diagramed example of the backwash squeeze, tast opens with one club, strong and artificial in the methods of the partnership South bids his feeble five-card spade suit, planning to introduce hearts on the next round. West's double ahows moderate high-card strength, 6-8 points, and South is eventually doubled in two spades after East had bid no-trump and North has given a preference.

Clubs were led, and South ruffed the second round. He sneakily led the heart nine, hoping to slip one past West, but that player soatched the ace and ahifted

Rapid Development No Better Than the Quality of Mobility

By ROBERT BYRNE

The issue of quantitative vs. qualitative development is one that requires an individual solution for each opening. On the one hand, it is risky to let the mobilization of the pieces lag for the sake of commeocing elaborate maneuvers; on the other hand, there are also risks—though perhaps not such obvious ones—in quickly throwing each piece on a convertent square without piece on a cooverheot square without coosidering how it will later fit io with a barmonious game plan.

The pawn formation plays a large part in determioing the future of a given piece on a given square, yet this factor was neglected by Black in the game between Grandmaster William Lombardy of the Uoited States and David Fiodlay of Scotland from the third round of the World Chess Olympiad in Haifa. Israel. Findlay obtaiced ad in Haifa, Israel. Findlay obtained a rapid development and quickly con-trolled the only open file, but Lombar-dy's slower mobilization, geared to vul-nerable points in the black pawn struc-ture, proved more effective. ture, proved more effective.

After the pawn structure became fixed by 7... PxP; 8 PxP, P-K4; 9 P-B3, which piece was the better placed, the white or the black QN? Findlay's QN took only one move, 6 ... QN-B3, to come out, while Lombardy took two moves, 6 QN-Q2 and 12 N-B4, to place his knight. Nevertheless. Findlay's knight was decied a useful

Findlay's knight was decied a useful perspective by the white QBP while Lombardy obtained a strong initiative by virtue of his fine knight play. Attack Given a Focus

Without worrying shout the cost in time, Lombardy carried out the lengthy KN maneuver, 14 KN-Q2, 15 N-N1, 17 N-1-R3 and 18 N-N5, to focus an attack on the immobile black QBP blocked by the black QN. Meanwhile, Findlay rushed to take possession of the queen file, doubling his rooks with 17.... R/1-Q1, although there was no target on that line to exploit.

Perbaps Findlay might have defended by 18 . . N-K1, yet White still stands better after 19 E-N5, P-B3; 20 B-K3, followed by 21 P-B4.

Lombardy had no qua ms about yielding the bishop pair with 21 BxN, BxB because it was the light squares. Q5 and QN5, that he intended to exploit. Besides, after the unpluning 23 N/4-R3, Findlay had to exchange his better bishop by 23. . . B-B1; 24 BxB, RxB to guard his OBP. RxB to guard his QBP.

The irony of the game was that after 25 OR-OL RXR: 26 RXR R-OL: 27 R-OS Findlay had to give up control of bis 22 B-R3 much-coveted queen file for the sake of protecting his QBP. This meant a clear triumph for Lombardy's strategy.

Lombardy's persistent pressure finally induced the blunder 35 . . R-K3, which dropped a vital pawn after 36 NxRP. Thus, the theoretical question as to whether White's advantage would have proven sufficient to wio weot unanswered. After the correct 35...

The Victim as Hero

Near the end of this appalling book, someone says: "What an education this has been for all of us. For us, and for our kids. I can't watch 'Petrocelli' anymore. "Petrocelli' is a big fairy

Indeed, "Petrocelli" is. And so are all the police thrillers on television, be-cause the characters in them have been redoced to sandwich boards, advertisredoced to sandwich boards, advertising this or that emotion; and the law itself, the processes of justice, have been made to appear more coherent in dramatization than they ever are in fact. Odd, then, that so many of the real-life characters in "A Death in Canaan" spend so much of their time watching fairy tales. They remember when and where they were in their lives by referring to the TV programs they have seen. (Ironically, one reason why Peter Reilly became a free man last week is that a witness watching "Kelley's Heroes" oo CBS on Sept. 28, 1973, could not have received an important telephone call before 9:50 P.M., and telephone call before 9:50 P.M., and still have seen a certain part of the pro-gram.) If our physical coordinates de-pend on the TV schedule, what about our moral coordinates? Barbara Gibbons of Canaan, Conn., 51 years old, white, semi-Bohemian, welfare mother, was murdered the night of Sept. 28, her throat slashed and her legs broken. Her 18-year-old illegitimate son, Peter, was charged with the crime. He had more or less admitted it, after being held incommunicado for 25 hours. without much sleep or food. A kind of serial confession was pieced together from scraps of interrogation and polygraph testing. It seems on the reading to be less a statement of facts than a statement work of plausible fiction, for which three policemen provided most of the ideas and to which Peter signed his name. A day later, Peter repudiated this confession. He was, nevertheless, tried for murder, convicted of first degree manslaughter and sentenced to 16

Ambivalence About Mother

I must pause. Joan Barthel reprints huge sections of the typescripts of the tapes recorded during Peter's interrogatapes recorded during Peter's interrogation and his testing by his detector. You may be tempted to skip over these sections. Please don't. No, they didn't use a rubber hose on him. The truncheons were psychological. A moody, insecure, out-of-focus 18-year-old was led to acknowledge ambivalent feelings about his mother, told outright that everybody had such feelings and that in fart he was the virtim instead of his in fact he was the victim instead of his mother, urged to imagine what if any-thing he might be capable of doing to her when he was angry, and en-couraged to transfer his trust to the father-image of Lieut. James Shay. They played his oerves, fears, confusions and fatheriessness like a harp, until they heard the tune they liked. These sections are horrifying.

But Peter was lucky. The citizens of Canaan didn't believe he was guilty, and formed a defense committee. By accident, a writer—Mrs. Barthel, who had been a staff reporter for Life magazine and was trying out the freelance life—learned of the case and undertook an article for New Times. Without that article, there wouldn't have been money to engage a lawyer and to put up ball. Without the continuing efforts of Mrs. Barthel and the citizens committee. Peter Reilly would not have come to the attention of such celebrities as Brendan Gill. Arthur Miller, Mike Nichols, Renata Adler and William Styroo. Mr. Styron contributes an introduction to this book; Mr. Miller was in several ways responsible for finding the oew lawyer and the psychiatrists who reopened the case and obtained Peter's freedom.

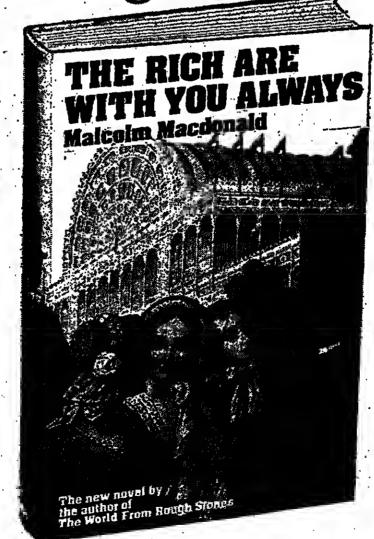

Doing Their Job

I must pause again. Much is made of radical chic, most of it consense. I can't think of a better use of one's celebrity than to lend it to a worthy cause. What else should one be doing with it? Tennis tournaments? Television commercials? Peter was about as radical as a pet rock. That certain well-known writers and artists wanted to and could help him should inspire us to question our motives for not having done so instead of theirs for having acted.

This rich and scary book is impossible to summarize with justice to the many subtleties of Mrs. Barthel. "A Death in Canaan," unlike the equally absorbing "Blood and Money" by Thomas Thompson, lacks glamorous dramatis personae: They are just trying to do their job, and decency is an unearned dividend. It lacks, actually, evil, and is in a way naive: You mean wil, and is in a way naive: You mean the system isn't perfect? Where's Ko-jak or Serpico or Petrocell? And just like "Blood and Money," it is littered with loose ends: Who is Auntie B. and why did she behave that way? and why did she behave that way? Whatever happened to the third wallet? Has anybody analyzed the stain on the plaid jacket? How come John Sochocki drowned? Whither the Parmalee brothers? Which means it isn't an episode of "Kojak," "Serpico" or "Petrocelli." It's as messy as the law, that anthology of our many ways of being fallible. It is also first class journalism.

The use of the polygraph as a thoughtreader, and of coercive psychologizing and beavy parochial suggestion on the part of the crime-minded readers of the polygraph charts were damnable. And just a grain tips scales. If Peter had been a punk, and Barbara had been respectable, Peter might have eoded up serviog 16 years to life, in-stead of graduating from high school-and becoming the victim-as-hero that Mrs. Barthel feels so ambivalent about.

In this beautiful, unprecedented book, a great dancer at the height of his powers sets down his ideas and feelings about his work. Mikhail Baryshnikov discusses all 26 ballets he has danced since coming to the West-from Giselle and Swan Lake to Petrouchka, Pas de "Duke," and Push Comes to Shove.

He writes of the problems, both technical and stylistic, of each role—what he responds to in each, where its difficulties lie, how he conceives, develops, rehearses and performs a role. And he writes about choreographers he has worked with, and about coming to grips with Western styles and American

Mr. Gotbaum 'Insists'

Victor Gothaum, who is ofteo credited with being the most realistic of local municipal labor leaders, is dreaming again.

The executive director of District Council 37, American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, says his union is "insisting" on Federal participatioo in "an overall solution" to New York City's fiscal crisis before municipal unions will help pay off $1 billion in city notes.

There is no question that additional Federal aid will be needed-and sonn-tn help ease a persisting fiscal crisis that bas been compounded by court action invalidating a moratorium on city notes. It would indeed be beloful if President-elect Carter would give more suhstantial assurances than he has offered so far that he will do all in his power to expedite such assistance.

It is wishful thinking, however, to suggest that an Administration that iso't eveo in office yet could push the necessary legislation through Congress in time to solve New York's immediate problem. Furthermore, Mr. Gotbaum's "insisting" isn't going to make it any easier to sell the essential loog-range package of aid for this and other troubled cities to the new Administratioo and a skeptical Coogress.

The local labor chieftain apparently expects new Federal handouts to eliminate any necessity for further cutbacks in municipal payrolls and in the excessive fringe beoefits eojoyed hy municipal employees here. There is no way that is going to happeo. Even if Mr. Carter were inclined to he so generous, which we doubt, Congress already has made clear that any assistance it ' is prepared to support must be tied to the most severe local economies.

Mr. Gotbaum's intemperate demand, coupled with a proposal to members of the State Legislature the other day that they rescind modest steps already taken to curh runaway municipal pension costs represents a posture most calculated to kill this city's hopes for further sympathy and help from Washington.

Double Trouble

Council members Theodore Weiss and Carol Greitzer have offered an interesting-but inappropriate-solution to a parking problem that has been becoming increasingly annoying in some sections of Manhattan. They would double the fine for double parking-from $25 to $50for those double-parkers who oeglect to leave a telephooe number or address where they can he reached.

There is an unwritten understanding in some parts of the city, Mr. Weiss noted, that cars may he doubleparked without penalty, especially when alternate side of the street parking is in effect. This custom has actually been legitimized by police order on, for example, the upper East Side. "It's unreal to think that everybody can find a place to park," Mr. Weiss said. "But it's not too much to ask that people leave a card saying where they can be reached."

Since wheo is it uoreal to expect people to obey the law, to leave moving lanes of the public streets free for moving traffic? What right bas anyone to double park, blocking the exit of cars legitimately parked along a curh and causing incessant horn blowing and endless inconvenience when the driver of a car that has been thus locked in wishes to leave?

. Parking on the public streets is a privilege that should command a price. Double parking is an outrage that ought to be penalized consistently and equitably, in accordance with the law.

Too Much Oil?

When the Alaskan pipeline was first being proposed is substituted for Indooesian (not an easy thing to do some seven years ago, the argument was that the United States was becoming dangerously dependent on foreign oil, that we needed to exploit every drop of the resource for ourselves and get it out of the ground in a hurry, no matter what the environmental hazards. Even then, some skeptics suggested that the oil would eventually be sent to Japan, but that charge was scathingly denied.

The United States was then importing less than 20 percent of its oil. Now, when it is importing 40 percent and the oil from Prudhoe Bay is scheduled to go into the pipeline in a year or so, we are told that this Alaskan crude will be a glut on the West Coast market, after all. The Standard Oil Company of Ohio, which owns more than half the production, wants permission to ship the precious fuel to Japan. In payment, the Japanese would buy Mideast crude oil and have it shipped direct to American East Coast refineries, with both the United States and Japan saving on shipping costs.

The scheme might be ingenious except for one overriding fact: it would leave this country more than ever at the mercy of the OPEC producers as to price and as to potential cutoffs. Frank Zarh, head of the Federal Eoergy Administration, puts the matter succinctly: "It is not in the nation's best interest to let that oil go ahroad."

The surprising oversupply on the West Coast is being attributed by some of the companies to a lowering of demand due to a reduced growth rate, to conservation, and to the opening last July of the Elk Hills Naval Petroleum Reserve io California. The first two factors are regrettably too modest to account for most of the change, and the Elk Hills production represents less than 15 percent of West Coast requirements. A possibly significant factor is the importing of 400,000 barrels a day of Indonesian oil by Standard of California. This company finds it more profitable to import Indonesian oil, which it owns, than to refine oil from the North Slope, in which-unlike Standard of Ohio-it has only an insignificant financial interest. Even if the Elk Hills flow is stopped and Alaskan oil mechanically or economically in view of the heaviness of one and the lightness of the other) there will still be a West Coast surplus and ooe that will grow larger as the Alaskan yield rises from its initial 600,000 barrels a day to an eventual 1.5 million.

Now that the pipeline has been laid, with billions of dollars at stake and the economy of Alaska in the balance, the question cannot be one of "shutting in" the oil, even temporarily, but of distributing it effectively. One proposal is to pipe it from Long Beach, Calif. to Midland, Tex., taking advantage of an abandoned natural gas line. California's Coastal Zoning Commission fears that the oil transfer might add significantly to the already polluted air of the Los Angeles region. Alternative lines bave been proposed from British Columbia to Edmonton, Alberta: from Port Angeles, Wash., to Clearbrook, Minn., and across Guatemala to the Gulf

Any of these lines would take time and might well involve some environmental damage, but in the long run, some one of them may be essential. More immediately, the problem will be to distribute the initial flow from the Prudhoe Bay wells.

If it is not to go to Japan, then it must be brought East by tankers moving through the Panama Canal. SOHIO and other companies contend that there are nnt eoough tankers, since under the Jones Act only American vessels may be used to carry United States products from one American port to another. Mr. Zarb, whose agency has made a long study of the subject, says that there are enough tankers and so does the Maritime Administration, which should know.

If there should nevertheless prove to be too few of them to carry the load, then it would be up to Congress to amend the Jones Act. Too much has been said about the value of Alaskan oil in reducing American dependence on foreign sources, for it to be exported now and the country made more dependent than ever on the energy resources of foreign states.

Moscow's Submarine MIRV

The Soviet Union's first successful test of a submarinelaunched ballistic missile (SLBM) armed with MIRV multiple nuclear warbeads is good news paradoxically for the United States and the world,

The United States tested its first MIRVed Poseidon SLBM eight years ago, as well as the MIRVed land-based Minute Man III, and the Pentagon predicted that the Russians would follow suite two years later. Instead, it was four years before the Soviet Unioo successfully tested its first land-based MIRV missiles and, lacking a sea-based version, began to deploy MIRV's exclusively in underground siles.

The huge size of these land-based missiles was perceived in the United States-where it revived an old political-strategic controversy about the Soviet Union's nuclear inteotioos—as a potential threat to the future stability of the nuclear balance. The enormous throwweight of the U.S.S.R.'s new silo-based MIRVed missiles may have been intended primarily to make up for lags in miniaturization technique and missile accuracy, as some Russians privately assert. But, as miniaturization and accuracy improve, the number of large hydrogen warheads these missiles could carry might acquire a first-strike capability against the American fixed, landbased Minute Man missile force.

With a half-dozen programs launched by former Defense Secretary Schlesinger to match this capability. the prospect is raised that the two superpowers ultimately might move from doctrines of stable deterrents. based on secure second-strike forces, to doctrines of pre-emptive attack. Fear on each side that the other might shoot first could turn every crisis ioto a nightmare. Io contrast to large, land-based intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBM's), submarine-launched MIRV missiles now available are neither large ennugh nor accurate enough for effective, first-strike counter-silo use. Their concealment and mobility, furthermore, make them into ideal second-strike weapons, useful only for deterrents; secure from pre-emptive attack, they can be

As long as the Soviet Union lacked a submarinelaunched MIRV missile, there was little possibility of lowering the ceilings tentatively set in the Ford-Brezhnev-Vladivostok agreement to a level that would head off a Soviet first-strike capability. Those ceilings permit each side 2,400 strategic bombers and missiles, of which 1,320 can carry MIRV multiple warheads.

But now, a significant reduction in those ceilings and Soviet agreement to deploy about half of its MIRV missiles at sea, as the United States does, could eliminate the possibility that either side could construct a highconfidence, first-strike force. Combined with restrictions on missile upgrading, including a ban on terminal guidance, such an agreement could assure the stability of the nuclear balance for a very long time.

It will take an act of political courage on the part both the Carter and Brezhnev administrations to overrule military leaders and negotiate an agreement of this kind, which would require suspension of ongoing missile programs. But if the political will is there, the Soviet development of a successful submarine-launched MIRV missile now makes this evolution conceivable.

City Finance: What Pension Funds Are For On the Urge to Kill

To the Editor:

Writing in The Times on Nov. 25, Steven R. Weisman concludes that the recent Court of Appeals decision on the bend meratorium has forced New Yorkers to face financial realities. Perhaps this is true but the new "rescue plans" now being proposed appear far from realistic.

It remains to be seen whether the bondholders who opposed the moraterium will be satisfied with more bonds instead of cash. But assuming that they will compromise to the extent of accepting at least part payment. in new bonds, the already excessive hurden of the city's debt service will be increased Is this then a realistic

New York City's debt is currently greatly underestimated. In reality, it is $21 hillion instead of about $12.5 hillion, the amount recently cited. The city has incurred around $8.5 billion of pension liabilities which should properly be considered as part of its tntal deht. It is now proposed by some that the pension systems should again pitch in and boy city bonds although they are already overloaded with them. The Teachers Retirement System, for example, had by October been forced to invest 32 percent of its fixed assets in these securities. By the end of 1977, it is committed to invest over 68 percent in New York City obligations.

Union leaders have again begun to bargain with these pension funds as though they owned them. They offer to buy more bonds in return for a moretorium on further layoffs, The pension funds, however, were set aside to pay pensions to city retirees. There are 25,000 retired teachers in New York City, and 8,000 of them bave pensions of less than $4,000 a year. These people are poor, and their livelihood depends on the viability of their pension system. Is it not fantastically unreal to assume that the pension funds exist merely to bail out the city or that the funds can be used as an instrument of collective bargaining?

Finally, it seems to us highly unrealistic to be considering what amounts to discrimination against a minority, the poor and aged retirees. at a time when we are opposed in general to discrimination against mi-

Fragile 'Boarder Babies'

To the Editor: Those rushing to rectify the terrible injustice done to "boarder habies" would be well advised to make haste slowly. A hospital is not a home-but to a child whn has known no other hame the attachments run deep.

L as a social worker, know of one vnungster whn died within two weeks of her transfer from a long-term. in-hospital hoarding status to a supposedly more appropriate facility. This ynungster was too limited to understand why she was being ousted from a place that had become her nnly home. Apparently unable to cope with the disruption and emotional pain involved, she gave in to her depression. refused to eat or drink, eventually lapsed into a coma and died.

Funding guidelines preclude paying two facilities for the care of one child. While generally quite understandable. such a policy tends to eliminate the possibility of sound transitional plan-

I have very little faith in our society's wholehearted concern for these coildren. If we cared there would be no "boarder bahies." Nevertheless I have just ennugh hope left to pray that the legislators undertaking this crusade attend to their duties with some awareoess of these children's psychological needs. Eveo one unnecessary death is one too many.

The Dual Phone Listing To the Editor:

I found your Bell Turns a Deaf Ear to Listing John and Mary Doe" particularly interesting. A couple of years ago I thought my wife would appreciate having her name added to mine in the telephone directory-but not a costly separate listing. At the local Bell Telephone nffice I told the very polite and cooperative custnmer representative of my intentions. I pointed out that there was ample room oo a single line of the telephone book for both names. Upon seeing her hesitate, presumably fearful of doing something new (and about to call a supervisor who certainly would have a phobia for precedents) I quickly assured her that it would suffice merely to edd my (new) middle name to the original listing. This was nnickly arranged and, whether or not Ma Bell realizes it, we remain, Friedman Herbert Ina:

Population Growth: The Non-Solutions To the Editor:

The similarity hetween Barbara Ward's solution for problems of excessive population growth (work, food and clean water) [Op-Ed Nov. 15] and Marie Antoinette's apocryphal "Let them eat cake!" is startling. The trouble with excessive population growth, in fact the reason it is seen as excessive, is that it prevents the provision of work, food and clean water to the country undergoing it. The nuly countries which have made progress in reducing hirth rates in the third world are those which have set out with specific programs to dn just that. If the Chinese growth rate really has been reduced to below 2 percent, is none of this achievement to be attributed to the world's most intense and coercive family planning program? The Times of Nov. 15 reported the execution of a Chinese for defaciog a wall poster, With such a regime of terror, almost any centrally directed social change can be achieved, including population control.

Barbara : Ward refers to the "guzzling' going nu in the United States. with 2,000 lbs. of grain per head contrasting with 400 lbs. in India. I do not know what one has to do with the other except insofar as it would be a damn good idea if Indians were as free to choose their diet as Americans. American food production features the exclusive use of high quality land and the most advanced scientific methods of mechanized agriculture. Only 4,000,-000 Americans produce - more thantwice as much grain as nearly 400 million Indians. Were it possible to transform Indian agriculture to the American pattern by irrigation and fertilizers, where is the work for the several hundred million illiterate

peasants displaced in this process?

"Triage" is an ugly idea to intrude ooto the international scene, but the "developing" country that cannot control its population growth will achieve nothing in this century but more unemployment, malnutrition and starvation, and more disease, no matter how frantically it seeks to provide work, food and clean water to its ever-multiplying numbers, nor how frantically its representatives at the U.N. protest the apposite Formless idealism, contempt for self-indulgent affluence, national guilt complexes, and the idealization of the barbarians of the Dark Ages have nothing to contribute to this impasse. To Keep the English From Sinking Beneath the Waves...

By Fritz Stern

The transitional phase in United States politics is not a propitious time for dealing with a complicated and controversial problem abroad, but the world at large does not always respect our four-year rhythm. Thus, decisions will soon have to be made concerning aid to Britain.

In the first place, the International Monetary Fund, where American influence is great, must respond to Britain's application for a standhy $3.9 billion loan to defend the pound; some English observers have talked of an additional, and larger, loan that should be sought among Britain's richest allies.

Britain has needed loans before; the very regularity of its requests may Fritz Stern, Seth Low Professor af

Mr. Carter's Cover-Up

By William Safire

WASHINGTON-For eight months earlier this year, candidate Carter and the men around him grimly refused to admit the existence of a list of contributors to the Carter 1970 campaign for Governor.

.The reason for the stonewalling has now become clear: when that "list that oever was" finally was forced into the open, it hinted at a long association with Erwin David Rabhan, a mursing home promoter now under investigatioo by Federal authorities.

Mr. Rabhan has left in his wake a string of busted companies, wrooged elderly patients, and irate partners, investors and former employees who charge him with swindling them. Much of his wheeler-dealing was detailed a few days ago by New York Times investigative reporter Nicholas Horrock. How did Jimmy Carter personally profit from his association with David Rabhan? According to the 1970 contributor's list, he accepted $8,600 over a two-year period from his friend: Mr. Rabhan's former associates say he told them he gave Jimmy Carter "much, much more." Beyond that much-needed early money, Mr. Carter took e gift of incalculable value: free air transportation, over a period of years, from Mr. Rabhan, a pilot who owned his own plane. The largesse did not stop when Mr. Carter became Georgia Governor: As late as 1974, Mr. Rabban paid 20year-old Jeff Carter $650 a month in cash and board for six months, landing the Carter name to a fish-protein production scheme that has since col-

That was how David Rabhan profited from his long-developed Carter connection: He could dazzle potential investors with his demonstrable closeoess to the Governor of Georgia. Telephone records unearthed by Mr. Horrock show how Mr. Rabhan, as a frequent house guest of Governor Carter, used the telephone in the Governor's Mansion to promote his husiness ventures.

The ability to tell partners to "call me at the Mansion" is like money in the bank to a slick promoter. According to his associates, Mr. Rabhan liked to boast bow be had shaped the daycare bill in Georgia, which was a boon to bis nursing home business; bow, through his nursing home connection. he had brought "Daddy" King together with the Carter campaign; how he had a hand in the appointment of officials to state boards regulating industries coocerning his interests.

Some of this was undoubtedly a promoter's self-touting, hot when the promoter can tell his prospect to call him at the Carter Governor's mansion and then cends the Governor's son out up stick.

oo an errand, the braggiog gains a certain credibility.

The connective tissue does not end there. Mr. Rabhan and an Atlanta alderman (since convicted for embezzlement and paid during his prison term by Mr. Rabban) formed Landev, inc., a real estate promotion. A former associete says he suspects that Rabban'a money came from Wesley Merritt, regarded as a "key figure" in illogal gambling and recently released from the Federal peo in Atlanta.

And who is the lawver representing Landev, the Rehhan promotion whose $225,000 sale of land to the Atlanta Transit Authority is now supposedly being investigated by the Justice Department? The head of the law firm is Robert Lipshutz, the chief fundraiser and treasurer of Jimmy Carter's Presidential campaign, slated for Chuck Colson's old job as White House counsel.

A lawyer can represent anybody; a rising politician can befriend anybody; no venality need attach. But a pattern can be discerned of relationships between Mr. Carter and his circle, and certain friends and supporters of theirs, and certain elements of the underworld, which deserves a more searching look.

In the three previous Administrations, even the hint of such a connection would trigger demands for further investigation. Teams of television reporters would be dispatched to Teheran, where Mr. Rabhan has been peddling his fish protein scheme to the Iranians, telling everyone "Jimmy and I slept in the same bed" and displaying hand-written letters of introduction from the oext President. But we're tired of that now. At Mr.

Carter's most recent press conference. nobody asked if he felt it was proper for a political contributor to come and use the Governor's Mansion as his operations center. Nobody asked politico-banker Bert Lance about the Rabban connection. Asking questions like that makes you impopular with your peers, some of whom might feel a little guilty ebout having played softball and covered pool-drainings when this story should have been dug out and put before the American people. And in the Justice Department, including the FBL socoping into the dext Presideot's close associates is not the smartest way to get to the top.

And so the cover-up has worked. Kudos to candidate Carter, who insisted for as long as was necessary that an contributor's list existed, and to Miss Betty Rainwater, deputy press secretary, who dismissed Mr. Rabhan as "comic relief." Politicians can join in a sigh of that comic relief: At last we have a bunch in power who know how to hang tough and make a cover-cently exclaimed that Britain'e plight did not represent a trisis of capitalism but the catastrophe of socialism. Actually, Britain has had the worst of both systems: a capitalism without sufficient managerial skill or incentive and a socialism mired in bureaucracy and trade-union selfishness.

The professional classes have been reduced to economic constriction, and the tax system represents a denial of hope. The loss of Empire proved hard; its legacy is the racial problem that embitters and endangers English life today. Devolution — the demand for Scottish autonomy-presents a further liability from the past. While the rest of Western Europe prospered, Britain was caught in the clotches of a stopand-go economy. What statistics conceal is that the essential civilized qualities of British life were preserved -at a cost.

Given the British performance, it is not surprising that fiscal experts insist that radical cuts in public expenditures should precede e new loan. "Let Britain put Its bouse in order first," reasonable men might argue, as they did last year about New York City. (On that occasion, the German Chancellor, Helmut Schmidt, had to instruct President Ford that the world economy could not tolerate a bankrupt New York. It can tolerate a bankrupt Britain even less.) The financial community will speak with a powerful voice; politicians may have to defend their own priorities. Fiscal wisdom can be political folly; economic stringency applied at the wrong time can set in motion political events that produce an unimaginable upheaval. In the 1930's, the guardians of fiscal orthodoxy clung to "sound" policies that brought about social catastrophes.

There are sound reasons for helping -without demanding Draconian reforms. Britain's prospects are reasonably good-if it can get through the next few years. By 1980, Britain will export oil, with obvious benefit to the balance of payments. The Government of Prime Minister Callaghan, moreover, has maintained the social contract whereby trade unions renounced their extravagant demands for instant redress of past inequities. Inflation has been cut in half. For all its appeasing gastures to the radical left, the Government has pursued a policy of moderatioo, and it is unlikely that the Tories could find another course.

The response of foreign lenders has to be finely calibrated: Massive austerity could produce a violent reaction thet would be harmful to both major parties, A collapse of the Callaghan Government would test Macmillan's. fear: "If the Conservatives get in with e majority of 30 or 40, will they be able to govern the country?". Will the trade unions accept from Mrs. Thatcher, whom they would immediately brand as "a class enemy," what they would deny their own party? A return of the Tories with mounting unemployment could well turn the hope of social peace to the certainty of social conflict. The Labor Party might finally split; e new socialist party, with a Trotskyist core and its class aneer, would constitute the most

The British have a genius for temporizing, for gradualism, but past ses should not make us forget that there is also much bloody-mindedness, much pent-up resentment and frustration in Britain. Our very faith in Britain could blind us to potential

A sudden deterioration of Britain's political climate would bode ill for Europe. The left elready demands a siege economy; protectionism could spread, with grave consequences to the European Economic Community. In arguing for help, the distinguished correspondent of The Financial Times, David Watt, emphasized the dangers to Europe "if the British stone crumbles from the arch."

Aid to Britain is an intricate technical question, fraught with politi-cal impooderables. The United States needs to be intelligently generous, as it was in the days of the Marshall Plan. We poured hundreds of billions into a futile and divisive war in Vietnam. A fraction of that sum could buy needed time for a much-needed ally. With luck, we will never know what disasters we escaped.

."The Adventures of Jonathan Corncoh, Loyal American," written by Himself, is one of the few surviving Revolutionary War novels. A satire whose author is still unknown—Corncob is a pseudonym—it was first published in 1787 in London and recently, edited by Noel Perrin, published in this country for the first time.

The antihero, Corncob, is a Massachusetts farm boy who gets involved in the Revolution as a result of making a girl on the next farm pregnant. He runs away to Boston and his adventures ensue. In the following excerpt, Jonathan has tunneled out of jail to avoid a tarring-and-feathering and, with others, jumps into a small schooner and sails away. He relates what happens: At the break of day we joined a British ship cruising in Bostoo bay, and were taken aboard it without difficulty. The captain was what is called in the navy a d-d smart officer: wheo any thing went wrong at the masthead, he called out to the sailors, Aloft, oh! you lubbers; but left them to find out themselves the cause of their embarrassment

When in working the ship all had been declared ready on the forecastle, and a rope afterwards proved foul, he told the lieutenaot stationed there, through a speaking trumpet, that he lied; and when in windy weather the men in the maintop could not hear him, he flogged them all round,

Happening one day to observe a thick smoke issue from under the door of the boatswain's store-room, I ran upoo deck, and addressing myself to the captain, "Sir," said I, "the boatswain's--'

"You d-d rascal," said the captain, pushing me over to the other side of the deck, "speak to the officer of the watch."

I took my hat off to the lieuteoant, "Your honour, the boatswain's store-The lieutenant gave me a kick in the backside, and said, if it was about stores I must go to the master. I went to the master, and said, "Sir, the boat-

Luckily the mate heard me out, but, as I imagined the report would be made to the captain by the same gradations, and that bis orders would descend by the same degrees, I coocluded that His Majesty's good ship would be hurned to the water's edge before the first bucket could be filled.

No such thiog. The mate oo sooner heard that there was a fire in the boatswain's store-room, then he hegan to give orders himself. The captain and officers did the same; the sailors imitated their example; everybody commanded, oobody obeyed, and we were in e fair way to be roasted, to the great satisfaction of the pious Bostonians, if the master, a man of a cool head, had not placed a row of sentinels along the deck, to keep a passage open for the water, which sooo overcame

This was the second annual Met Bazaar, and sometimes the pickings seemed a bit picked-over. Most visitors to the bazaar would have given a good deal to see their favorite performers, but only a few put in appearances. Instead, the opera buffs settled for buying photographs of singers ($2 apiece) and dishes of Mrs. Rich. ers (32 apiece) and dishes of Mrs. Richard Tucker'a noodle pudding (50 cents).
One man, who called himself "Big Jim," asked Mrs. Tucker for her autograph, while Mrs. Georges His tenderly carried a loaf of pumpkin bread that had been baked by Lucine Amara.

Pessimism about whether the Carter Administration could cut the unemploy-ment rate to 6.5 percent by the end of 1977, which is one of President-elect Carter's goals, was expressed in a television interview by Bert Lance, direc-tor-designate of the Office of Management and Budget. He said that it was "almost a certainty" that Mr. Carter would recommend a tax cut in an effort to spur the economy. [1:1-2.]

Whether the blanket pardon President-elect Carter has promised Vietnam War draft evaders will be broadened has not been decided, Mr. Carter told reporters after leaving church in Plains, Ga.

Two years after tha first budget and personnel reductions in the New York City Police and Fire Departments, the Commissioners of both departments say that the cuts may have been less harmful than they had anticipated. Essential services have been maintained, the Commissioners said, despite the loss of more than 5,000 policemen and 2,000 firemen, and the job performance of each department has apparently improved as well. With unanimity, which has been rare, not one of the 12 members of the Conference Board's Economic Forum, predicted a renewal of the recession next year, despite an apparent uncer-tainty among the public and business-men. The coming year will bring a modest but steady expansion in the na-tion's economy, with slightly lower rates of both inflation and unemployment, the Conference Board's economists, who have a national standing said. [53:5.]

Euphoria reigned for a while in the credit markets last Friday, but, as in most euphoric situations, there was a letdown as the Federal Reserve drained some reserves from the banking sys-tem. Another strong advance in fixed-income prices pushed short-term interest rates to their lowest levels in more than four years before the setback. [53:6.]

The appliance industry, which got off to a fast start early this year, bas been shutting down operations in a number of states to allow swelling inventories to shrink. In such situations workers feel tha impact and this is one of the factors in the increase to 6.1 percent in the jobless rate in November. [53:2-4.]

The New York Cocoa Exchange's traders and analysts wondered whether the climb of cocoa futures to the daily limit last Friday after a decline most of the week might be a precursor of a drop this week. The record prices of cocoa futures, reflecting a shortage in Africa, have alarmed many traders recently. Friday's closing price for March cocos was $1.36 65/100 a pound, up the 4-cent limit for the day and not much below the recent record price for the contract of $1.46, set Nov. 16. [53:2-4.1]

The British Government must, before Christmas at the latest, decide how and where to cut at least $1.65 billion from public spending to get a new $3.9 bil-lico line of credit from the International Monetary Fund. The loan is needed to satisfy the Government's previous debts and to pay for its chronic balance of payments deficits. Thus, cuts in public spending will be made, perhaps at the risk of losing the goodwill of the labor movement. [53:1.]

Talent Search Spotlights Young Performers

By LAURIE JOHNSTON

At the age of 17, Stanley Owens of Brooklyn's Walt Whitman Houses has a theatrically deep voice, eight brothers end sisters and a dream of "making it from Performing Arts High School to the Juilliard School to Broad-

Russell Spellman of Stapleton Houses on Staten Island is a 16-year-old voice major at the Higb School of Music and the Arts, has studied with the Dance Theater of Heriem and says, "To be at the Met, that's my ambition."

Yesterday Mr. Owens growled his wey through a Louis Armstroog version of "Hello, Dolly!" and Mr. Spellman did a dazzling modern-dance solo in the finals of the New York City Housing Authority's seventh annual Talent Search competitioo.

Wasichana, eight young girls from Frederick Douglass Houses in Manhattan, and the Marble Hill Dance Troop, from Marble Hill Houses in the West Bronz, performed African-inspired dances—the latter group with chanting and drums. Leisa Vazquez and Cynde Jackson, of Edgemere and Arverne Houses in the Rockaways, danced together as Sugar and Spice, and 13 boys from Murphy Houses did routines oo unicycles that suggested they were born with wheels for feet.

They were among 23 amateur ects winnowed from more then 2,000 ea tries since the competition began last summer. The eudience that filled the Fashioo Industrics High School eudi-torium at 225 West 24th Street, came to cheer oeighborhood ravorites, but npplauded all the contestants.

Time will tell whether a star was boro, or even wbether the city's publichousing developments have become the post-Catskills incubator of performing talent. But atteotion has been paid-"There is an opportunity to be seen and heard," said Eglantice Braaf, an officer in her Twin Parks teoants organization as well as in her elderly citizens group in the Bronx.

Serving as ao usher, in a black velvet gown and silver shoes, she all but danced along with Mr. Spellman during his solo. As it ended, she raised her fist in a "Right on!" gesture and an appreciative shout that was drowned in the geoeral eppleuse.

Groups of elderly people had come from the projects by the busload. Anna Glorioso, aged 72, was among several members who took edvaotage of the intermission jazz orchestra to dance in the aisles.

'Couldn't Be Better'

"Sit down, beby, you'll catch a heart attack," called Domingus Harkins, who had come with other young people from Douglass Houses. A little later, bowever, he said, "They should really go up on stage and be in the contests." Mrs. Glorioso's friend from Marlboro Houses in Brooklyn, 81-year-old Salvatore Borgia, said admired Jacqueline Sarvis of Eastchester Houses. Looking every joch like a future diva, in a long, red dress with a white satio stock, she sang an aria in Italian amid respectful whispers of "Sshh!" and the accompaniment of e baby's well.

"That girl should continue in opera," Mr. Borgia said, with a broad smile, He also liked the master of ceremo oies, Izzy Sanabria, the publisher of Latin New York magazine, who made light-hearted references to the city's mixture of cultures and called his own red suit "a Puerto Rican loud-type outfit." Mr. Sanabria gently chided Charlesanoa G. Adams, chief of the Housing Authority's tenant-programs division, for misprocouncing his name in her introduction.

"Let's everybody start learning how to pronounce Puerto Rican names," be told the audience. "We've been here a long time now." To prolonged cheers, he told young people of the housing projects that, instead of "ripping off old people, you should respect them as you would year own mother and start learning from them."

"I liked it," Mr. Borgia said, "wben be told the young people to be nice to the old people." Mrs. Glorioso said, "in our project, we're mostly Italian in the senior citizens' center. The boys' club members will walk us home to our apartments." The Housing Authority operates more than 200 projects with 600,000 tenants in 162,000 family units.

Winners of the housing Taleot Search will receive trophles, savings bonds from Housing Authority employees' fraternal organizations and two $250 scholarships from the Residents' Advisory Council.

In a petition to the Public Service Commission, he urged the agency to short-en the peak period proposed by Con Edison so that it would "more closely match actual usage."

Rent Rise Protested

Councilmen Robert F. Wagner Jr., Democrat, and Henry J. Stern, Liberal, both of Manhattan, joined about 50 tenants in a demonstration against a proposed 171/2 percent rent increase in the building at 51S West 59th Street. The demonstrators marched in front of Roosevelt Hospital, which uses the apartment building for a staff residence. The 33-story building was built about three years ago under the Mitch-ell-Lama middle-income housing pro-

New State Welfare System

The Univac Division of the Sperry Rand Corporation has been selected to install computer hardware with which New York State's Department of So-cial Services is to develop and operate a new welfare management system.

Negotiations have begun on an eight-year contract that calls for state outlays exceeding $8 million to install the equipment, according to Michael Dlem, director of management infor-mation services for the state agency. If the negotiations are not successfully completed by Dec. 15, the IBM Corpo-ration, as runoer-up among four companies invited to bid, would get a chance to negotiate. L.I. Milk Company Agrees To End Therapeutic Claim For Acidophilus Product

A Long Island distributor has agreed to drop certain therapeutic claims for Russel Farms milk, a recently developed product for people unable to digest regular milk, State Attorney General Louis J. Lefkowitz reported yesterday.

Sweet acidophilus milk, containing a culture of lactobacillus acidophilus, began to reach markets in the New York metropolitan area in September, having been produced first by food scientists at North Carolina State University.

It was estimated that there were 30 million Americans who got gas symptoms, cramps and diarrhea from regular milk, and the new product eliminated the tartness many users found distasteful in previously available acidophilus milk.

Powers Not Proved Mr. Lefkowitz said his office got the consent of Sweet Acidophilus Company of Metropolitan New York, situated in Great Neck, L.L., to stop asserting that Russell Farms milk, the trade name it uses, helps digestion, helps prevent sys-temic and intestinal infections and overcomes sterility of the digestive tract attributable to sterile foods and antibiotics. According to Mr. Lefkowitz, such curative

The distributor also agreed not to suggest in the future that sweet acidophilus milk could be used in coffee or cooking, since heating destroyed the lactobacillus culture, Mr. Lefkowitz said. He added that the company had entered into the agreement without conceding any wrong-

When the Company Moved, This New York Family Stayed.

John Von Hartz, a writer at Time-Life Books for 13 years, cleared out his desk the other night, picked up the old Royal typewriter he bought from the maintenance department in a moment of sentiment, and walked down the empty corridors, past rows and rows of empty offices, whistling.

Time-Life Books has fled Rockefeller Center for "the provinces," which is how Mr. Von Hartz describes Alexandria, Va.-or almost any other place outside New York. "I'd rather be a burn in New York than the richest man in the provinces." he said.

So he was quitting Time-Life Books, riding the F train home to the East Village where he plans to write plays, at least until his $20,000 in severance

He Prefers Subways

"Down there," he said, dropping a token in the turnstile and speaking of life in the provinces, "you can drive to work in 10 minutes."

John Von Hartz said he did not much like cars. The last car he owned was a 1956 Ford. He does like subways,

Then with a foolish smile, he recalled something that happened to him on the F train one night. This was last July, just after he and his wife had come back from a company junket during which they were wined and dined and a helicopter. Suddenly, he said, he had a strange impulse to tell the other New Yorkers on the train, "I'm not leaving. I'm not leaving."

He said nothing, of course. Why give others reason to think him a less than rational man? Some thought so already. After all, here was a 43-year-old writer with a wife and two children to support, walking away from a $25,000 job and a chance to trade big-city pressures for provincial pleasures and saying, "I'm not leaving."

Others Aren't Moving

But then John Von Hartz was hardly the only holdout. Almost two-thirds of his 315 co-workers refused to follow the corporate moving van, a high per-centage as such relocations og. Some centage as such relocations og. Some found other jobs, inside and outside the company. Some, like John Von Hartz, have no jobs. And, as they clean out their desks, he said, "We keep stopping each other in the empty hallways and asking, "Why did they go?" It's like a divorce that no one quite understands. Friends get together and say, "What happened? Everything was fine."

Not so, said management. Taxes here were too high. The cost of doing busi-ness was too high. And by last month, a publishing operation that seemed so much a part of New York began operat-ing in a Washington suburb.

"And that depresses me," Mr. Von Hartz said, "depresses me mightily. I mean, I'll survive, but here is a business that grew and got rich in New York abandoning the city. It's heart-

He was in the kitchen of his brownstone on East Second Street now, pouring a glass of red wine before joining the family in the living room. There, the talk again turned to the city.

A New York Family

John and Katherine Von Hartz are a chanvinistically New York City couple. They send their two children-Maria, 12, and William, 8—to the city schools. The whole family bikes around the city, swims at the Y and, in sum-mer, they grab blankets and head for Shakespeare in the Park.

They love the life of the neighborhood, the block. As charter members of the Brownstone Revival Committee, the Von Hartzes have long believed in buying and restoring old homes here rather than fleeing to the suburbs to build new ones.

They love the cultural life of the city. They have season tickets to almost everything. Mr. Von Hartz belongs to the New Dramatists Committee, a group of promising playwrights. Last season a play of his ran for 70 performances at the No Smoking Playhouse, so-named because it was once the site of a hero sandwich shop that had a

The play, "The New Man," was a comedy, he said, about an office that was sort of "a vertical Florence," with everybody merrily writing plays and novels for outside patrons. Time-Life Books was once such a place, he said.

Uneasy About Expenses

But Time-Life Books has gone and with it the family's primary source of income. Another source is the rent from their three brownstone tenants. That pays the mortgage and allows "The Supers," as they call themselves, to live rent-free.

As for other expenses, the Von.

Hartzes admit to a certain uncasiness these days, particularly about the medical and dental bills that will soon no longer be covered by a liberal company policy.

And Maria's first reaction to life without an employed father was:

All the same, Maria would not care to move to Alexandria, to give up her friends at Hunter and the independence that comes with having a bus stop on the corner. "Down there you can't go any place unless your mother drives you," she said. William wasn't keen on leaving

Hunter, either. "Practically everybody in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades has skateboards now." he explained, "and they ride them in the hall when nobody's ground."

Indeed, the only family member with a halfway open mind about the move was Katherine Von Hartz, who enjoys restoring brownstones. But her mind was closed. After a visit to Alexandria's Olde Towne, a restored Colonial section on the Potomac. "It didn't look as if real people were living there,"

The prices in the provinces were real enough, though, They saw townhouses that started at $75,000, split levels for $100,000 and the more they saw the the old prownstone looked.

"My God," Mr. Von Hartz exclaimed, by the time you figure the down payment, the monthly costs and the two cars and the rest, my God, you're spending an entire salary just for that."

Draws a Distinction At this point Mr. Von Hartz lowered his voice and launched into his "I'm not knocking Alexandria" theme. Alexendria was a nice enough place, he said, for people who had already lived in the suburbs and who looked upon

New York as a place to work.
"But I don't like the idea of driving to a shopping center and seeing the same faces I see in the office," he went on. "I'm afraid of what might happen to me down there. I've heard too many stories from friends who went to San Francisco with the Saturday Review. People go to seed out there. You know, they forget to shave and just live for the weekend when they can get a plane back to the city."

Mr. Von Hartz smiled and drained his glass. "I guess there are certain New York types and there's no getting away from it," he reflected. "There's no going to the provinces."

And These Families Left

Betty and Douglas Graham and their son, Todd, at their home in the Virginia woods

Special to The New York Times ALEXANDRIA, Va.-Corporate kinship, Southern-style, is bringing the displaced persons of Time-Life Books Inc. into greater social and family contacts here than would have been thinkable two months ago back in New

What sociologists might call "clan maintenance" has reached across the company roster, bringing maccustomed off-hours camaraderie to executives and sser employees alike following the relocation in Washington's Virginia suburbs of Time Inc.'s book-publishing subsidiary.

Visiting around-spontaneous weekend droppings-in at homes by office colleagues—is one of the mexpected changes, apparently as novel to the steady-state, native New Yorkers transplanted here as are the Pentagonsized suburban shopping malls and the new necessity of automobiles to get to them. While few book-division peo-ple say they would have sought the migration here, the move's impact on life now seems not unwelcome.

"Serious Doubts" at First

Leaving two-thirds of its 300 staff members behind because they would not give up New York City or because the inflated cost of houses here seemed prohibitive, the book division moved from Rockefeller Center on a Friday, Oct. L and reopened here the follow ing Monday with what Marvin Crockett, former Brooklyn and Broux resident, recalls now were "pretty serious doubts for a lot of us about whether we could really make it down here."

"A lot of people up there, they were all New York—I mean New York, all ...the ... way," Mr. Crockett said in his office in the traffic department the other day. He looked out through 20 feet of plate glass on the tree-filled inner court of the new, still unfinished. Atrium office building here, the book division's headquarters on the Potomac.

"They wouldn't leave New York be-cause they'd be like fish out of water anywhere but New York," he said. But now that we're here, we reach out we visit each other's houses more than we ever did in New York. It's just not, you know, done in New York. Like, on the weekend, I call someone from here at work and then I just get in the car end go over. No way would it happen in New York."

. School Is Praised Mr. Crockett and his wife, Sadie, had never lived anywhere but in New York when they gave up an eging apartment in the Park Slope section of Brooklyn in September. They and their son, Jamel, 6, have settled here in a three-year-old "town house" duster just south of Alexandria, where the $310-a-month rent is $18 more than they paid in Brooklyn.

"But," Mr. Crockett said, "we've got much more space" and the public school in the well-nated Fairfax County system is 'better, much better, then back there."

Mr. Crockett's newly acquired 1970 Chevrolet Nova, the first car he has owned but a necessity here, was bought, in part, with a company loan and the bonus of a month's salary bestowed in August on those who made the move. In place of a twice a day ride on the IND's F train, Mr. Crockett now manervers his Nova along the landscaped

George Washington Memorial Parkway. He escapes the worst of rush-hour crush because his working hours are 9:30 to 5:30. "The view of the trees and leaves and all that really wakes me up in the morning and sends me off at night,"

Office pelchbors are also a new experience to Steven Maxwell, the book division's general manager, who was the logistics man for the corporate escape from New York taxes 6 percent of the book division's large profits here as against 221/2 percent in New York.

The Maxwells his wife, Kay, who went to high school in the Virginia suburbs, and their son, John, 8-are in a treeless, pillared and porticoed pseudo-antebellum subdivision boused in a $100,000-and-up precinct of Mc-Lean, Va., called Old Swink's Mill Es-

New York Not Missed The book-division president lives across the street and a vice president is five minutes away. Senator Richard S. Schweiker, the Pennsylvania Republican who would have been Ronald Reagan's Vice-Presidential running mate, is

'In New York, we'd see each other once or twice a year at office parties." Kay Maxwell said. "It's really kind of nice to get to know each other better." When Time-Life Books was in New York, the Maxwells lived in a threeand-a-half-room apartment at 83d Street and York Avenue, and their new company neighbors lived in Con-nections or Westchester County. "If I had to go back to that apart-ment now, it would be a very tough adjustment," Mrs. Maxwell said. "I'd love it," her son, John, broke in from a spot on the carpet of a huge family room, where he was building a gasoline filling station with plastic blocks

"That's because your friend Michael is in the building," his mother said, adding: "It's very nice for me when John comes home from school here and he can go right out again on his bike.

The view of the trees and leaves wakes me in the morning and sends me off at night."

In New York we couldn't let him ride

"Down here the first paycheck with-out New York taxes—it was like a substantial raise. And it is nice not to have to pay school tuition [John formerly went to a private school, Buckley]. Food is cheaper, and electricity certainly is cheaper."

"The only thing we miss is lots of good restaurants," Mrs. Maxwell said.

"You don't just get up and go out on Saturday night. You have to make weekend reservations at some of these places a week, or two weeks, ahead of Tennis at Lunch Time The $90 a month he said he was paying to garage the tamily's car in New York "just makes the payments on the second car we had to buy down here, and parking is free." Finding the parking-at least away from home—can be a problem, though

One of numerous dissatisfactions with the Washington area that Martin Balsari mentioned was the lack of public parking at or near the Library of Congress, across the Potomac on Capitol Hill.

The Library of Congress, which was touted as one of the main reasons for being here, is a horrendous problem," he said, "It just isn't convenient. We were an eight-block walk from the New York Public Library, and it was far more efficient. The drive over to the Library of Congress may be only by minutes, like they said, but it takes you 40 minutes to find a parking placwhen you get there."

Mr. Baidessari, a 27-year-old bache lor, says he made the move from Nev York only because it meant he would b promoted to editorial researcher "afte five years of trying." He is the first vice chairman of the Newspaper Chill unit at Time Inc., and the union's repre sentative here among the Manhattar transplants. Another complaint he had was that "Alexandria closes up at 6:30 P.M." He would have preferred to live, ... in downtown Washington but ended us in an Arlington County high-rise apart

"The people with families are happy, guess," he said. But he said the Guild bulletin board at the office here was "loaded with notices—Need ride to."

The book division, for the moment is easing the shock of automobile own. ership among its employees by subsidizing two-thirds of the $30-a-month basement garage parking fee at the Atrium Building here. The subsidy is taper off in stage through 1980. "But the cost of gasoline and park-

Guide to Cooking the Common Eel

John and Katherine Von Hartz near their brownstone on

By CRAIG CLAIBORNE

We are well aware that the common eel may not be caviar to the general public, a fact that, given our appetite, is sad but true. We happen to enjoy properly cooked eel in almost any of its versatile forms. That is why we are pleased to announce that there is now a handy little loose-leaf cookbook filled with interesting ideas on how to prepare eel it is published by the Institute for Anguilliform Research at the University of Bridge-

The book was sent to us by Clara McKeever of the biology department of that university with a note that informs us that the book "was put together by some members of the biology department at the University of Brideport (the Eel Institute) with the serious intent of directing attention to a food resource little known and little used in the U.S.
—and to our studies of that fish.

'The Eel Cookbook' offers a good deal of information about eels in addition to more than 50 recipes. The book may be obtained by sending a check or money order for $1 payable to Eel Institute, Dr. Michael E. Somers, Biology Bepartment, University of Bridgeport, Bridgeport, Conn. 06602. Here is a sample recipe from the book:

FRIED EEL WITH TARTAR SAUCE 2 eels, skinned, cleaned, cut into three-inch pieces

Milk to cover Salt and freshly ground pepper to teaspoon Tabasco sauce

cup flour cup oil, plus enough for deep frying large bunch parsley, optional

Tartar sauce (see recipe).

1. In a mixing bowl, place the eel pieces and add milk to cover, salt, pepper and Tabasco sauce. Drain, Take eel pieces and dredge in flour seasoned with salt and pepper.

2. Heat one-quarter cup oil in a skillet until hot and almost smoking and then add eel pieces. Cook the eel stirring and turning occasionally, until golden brown. Drain eel pieces on paper towels.

3. If desired, remove and discard parsley stems. Rinse parsley and pat to complete dryness. Deep fry the parsley, drain on paper towels and serve with eel pieces. Serve with lemon wedges and tartar sauce.

if necessary and lemon juice. Add the remaining ingredients and mix well.
Yield: About one and one-half cups.

Recently we ran a recipe from a reader for mamaliga, a dish made with corn meal and served with the addition of garlic, feta cheese (as a substi-tute for brinza), hutter and so on. Mamaliga is frequently referred to as the Rumanian national dish, and we have received numerous letters from readers of Rumanian descent remi-niscing about the dish and offering versions: Here is one.

"My grandmother, mother and I were intrigued and delighted to see the mamaliga recipe printed several days ago. Our family recipe is not precise and is prepared entirely to taste (probably due to the fact that my great-grandmother came to this country from proven did. Rumania as a child and never did hand down a written version of the recipe).
"The corn meal mush is made in a saucepan. After it is cooked according to the directions on the box, large curd cottage cheese, butter and salt are stirred in over the heat until the mixture is hot again. Then this lemon-colored porridge with the fluffy white curds is served in a bowl with a dollup of sour cream,

The result is glorious. "I recently heard of yet another method of preparing mamaliga. Using a rectangular baking pan, alternate layers of corn meal mush and mozzarella cheese are baked until the mix-ture is firm. Each portion is cut out around the corner.

BROADHURST TR

IS ONE OF THE FUNNIEST COMEDIES TO BE SEEN ON BROADWAY IN YE

It offers a most memorable and brilliant debut by Jonathan Pryce, and an un-self-consciously dazzling staging by Mike Nichols. Playwright Trevor Griffiths is brilliant. He makes us believe in his people and he has found himself a perfect form to discuss the weighty matter of comedy. You can laugh at the jokes, savor the characters, and contemplate the difference between a comedian and a comic, a Harry Langdon and a Bob Hope. The evening is full of laughter. Much of the fun comes from Mr. Nichols' oiled and electric staging and the stylish actors. Milo O'Shea's wry, embittered, hopeful comic guru is lovely. The outstanding performance is by Jonathan Pryce as Gethin. His manic, hysteric, narrowly controlled performance is extraordinary. He stalks through the night like a man possessed. Don't miss him or the play!" -Clive Barnes, N.Y. Times as a play about comedians should be. It is hard to imagine a director other than Mike Nichols so completely understanding and sympathizing with the nature of solo comic performance. Each of the performers is in his own way wonderful. Griffiths' idea is ingenious and theatrical. He has warmth, he has vigor, he has an affirming attitude. In this play he is affirming quality above shoddiness, high standards not just in stand-up comedy but, of course, in all of art and finally in all of life. A fresh kind of serious entertainment." -Martin Gottfried, N.Y. Post

"Inspiredly theatrical!"

"Spectacular theatre!"

-Douglas Watt, Daily News

"Broadway has come up with something refreshingly "A funny play, a stimulating play, and a play that different: a serious drama that has an unmistakable uplifting spirit. It is a play that one can feast on comfortably. The production brilliantly bridges the gan between performers and audiences through Nichols' iridescent staging. A triumph!"

—Christopher Sharp, Women's Wear Daily

"A dangerously funny play about comedy and commitment, written with the kind of flashing brilliance "An uncommonly intelligent, funny and intriguing play that makes your eyes swim." -Marilyn Stasio, Cue

"An irresistible serious comedy, as funny and painful "'Comedians' shines with theatrical dazzle. Laughter cascades through the plot. Never for a moment, however, does the production loosen its grip on the spectator's interest. Certainly one for all to see."

> "The best new play to come to Broadway is 'Comedians', by Trevor Griffiths. It does for comics > what 'A Chorus Line' does for dancers. The performances are excellent. Mike Nichols' direction is tough and perfect. The humor is marvelously funny, low-down belly faughs, then cunningly complex. 'Comedians' is a great work of comedy about comedy and the serious business of being funny."

-Leonard Probst, NBC Radio

-William Glover, Associated Press

"Bitterly funny and lump-in-the-throat amazing!"

makes you care." - Julius Novick, Village Voice

"Mike Nichols has sharply directed a first-rate cast in an engaging, adult entertainment. The jokes fly

here. It's recommended." -Stewart Klein, WNEW-TV

about the serious subject of humor."

-Kevin Sanders, ABC-TV

"I was riveted to 'Comedians', Trevor Griffiths' fascinating, strange, compelling play. Mike Nichols has directed this work with such feeling and insight that the play's inner power comes through beautifully. Here is a play of vast ambition, intensely dramatic and compelling in its scope. I cherish it. I will never again be able to watch a comedian at work without thinking of this strangely fascinating play. By all means go!" -William Raidy, Newhouse Newspapers ::

'An acerbic, funny play about the role of the comedian in society has given lustre to a generally dull Broadway season, just in time for holiday theatre-going." -Fred Winship, U.P.I.

"'Comedians" is an absolute original, startling and stunning, and it has been directed by Mike Nichols with such cunning that it seems not a play at all but a vividly real experience through which the playgoer lives in a high state of tension and attention. Nobody will fail to be moved and astonished by the virtuosity of Jonathan Pryce, who emerges as one of the great young actors of England."

—Elliot Norton, Boston Herald American

Stage: 'The Brownsville Raid'

Negro Ensemble Company Gives Brilliant Team Show

By CLIVE BARNES

The history of white America is lit-tered with the tales of injustice to black America. One of the more curious, almost more pointless, of those tales was what was called the Brownsville Raid in 1906. A black regiment of the Army was sent to Brownsville, Tex., from Nebraska in 1906. Brownsville is a small Texan town, close to the Mexican border, and perhaps its one claim to fame at that time was that it had been the Site of what was called the 'last battie" of the Civil War. It was a white town, with a fairly large itinerant Mexican population. Even in the early 1960's only one percent of the population was Asian or black.

The city of Brownsville resented the black soldiers. There were minor incidents. Then on the night of Aug. 13, 1906, the town of Brownsville was shot up—allegedly by black soldiers. The evidence against the soldiers was the presence in the town of cartridge cases from Springfield rifles-which only the soldiers had. Yet no culprit was apprehended and no charges were brought. It seems highly possible that the raid, during which a Mexican was killed, was rigged by the townsmen to get rid of the black soldiers.

Eventually the President, Theodore Roosevelt, ordered all the enlisted men of the regiment to be dishonorably dis-Charged from the Army. There was no trial, no military tribunal, no proper hearing. On the advice of Booker T. Washington, the President delayed the decision on the discharge until after the 1906 election, so that the Negro yote would not be deflected from the party of Lincoln."

This discreditable incident has now been made into a taut and most com-pelling drama by Charles Fuller, Called simply "The Brownsville Raid," this, like quite a few good new plays these days, started life at the Eugene O'Neill Playwrights Conference. Last night it had a professional premiere, staged by the Negro Ensemble Company at its agreeable new home at the Theater de great deal of humor, insight and compassion. The play is never for a mo-ment weighted down with history, and even though the outcome is a matter of shameful public record, somehow Mr. Fuller maintains a tension. Partly this is achieved by the introduction of presumably fictional details, but the results are fascinating.

After the Emancipation, the Army offered one of the few possible "careers" for black people. A man, such as Sgt. Maj. Mingo Saunders (the hero of the play), gave his life to his country. and absorbed a great deal of the Army ethos. He had seen service against the Apaches in the last of the Indian Wars and had fought in Panama and Cuba. He was a soldier first, an American second and a black third. He was Uncle Tom with sergeant's stripes, but a good man. One never knew whether the Army radicalized him-but we do know that this fine soldier ended up as a daily laborer in Washington. The only survivor of the Brownsville incident is Pvt. Dorsey Willis, who in 1973 had his dishonorable discharge made into an honorable discharge. He was not given any back pay or privileges. Mr. Fuller sees these men as part of a historical conspiracy. Even the whites are not seen as demons, but as dis-creditable human heings. The folks who brought us Brownsville were, later, precisely the same sort of folks who brought us Watergate.

The play is very difficult to place in a permanent setting—indeed as a play it would probably make a better film— but the setting by Neil Peter Jampolis does its best, as does the staging by Israel Hicks. The acting is exemplary. When the Negro Ensemble Company was founded it was no accident that

Mr. Ward, who, to be frank, I usually admire more as a director than an actor, has never been better than as Mingo Saunders' he is superb in his fears and entanglements. Classy Pop By JOHN ROCKWELL

When Daryl Hall, John Oates and their five-man hand kicked into their first number at the Palladium Saturday night, it was difficult not to feel a certain annoyance. Their appropriation of many of the devices of soul music of the 1970's is so calculated that all the old shihboleths about whites ripping off blacks resurface. But. white rockers have been horrowing from rhythm and blues for years, so why single out Hall and Oates (as they are known as a unit)? Furthermore, Hall and Oates hardly confine their borrowings to Gamble and Huff and other present-day Blacks; they are busy ripping off everybody, of whatever lor, into a happy melange of 60's and 70's rock, pop and soul.

But Mr. Oates, who generally plays rhythm guitar and sings barmonies, has a fine voice, too, buskier and earth-ier. The result may not often rise to heights of celebratory release, but it

Myrna Lamb's new play, "Crab Quadrille," at the Interart Theater, deals with five intricately interwoven characters whose sexual permutations might baffle a computer. Steve is married to Irene and is having an aifair with his office assistant Evita, while Irene is having an affair with Sam, who is planning to become partners with Steve in a Baltimore crabcake franchise. The pivotal character is a novelist named Joanna, who is or was-involved in one form or another with all the other characters.

This roundelay is played out in a duplex summer house shared by Joanna and the married couple. She is upstairs. They are downstairs. The apartments are identical. All the people seem to be suffering from sunstroke of the heart. Joanna, nicely played by Joyce Aaron, is the only one of the quintet who evokes our interest or sympathy. The others seem as shallow as the outgoing tide.

The sterile action and fragile dia logue are interrupted by noises outside—someone has stolen a hex sign from the house and a youthful rabble is rising-and by a symbolic figure, portent-ously identified as 'Real Estate Visita-

Margot Lewitin, the director of "Crab Quadrille," has been quoted as saying that the play is about "people who will do anything for survival." I have heard that theme before. This play is about houses, how people will do anything for a summer house. The basic argument is whether to sell or not to sell. Possession, ownership, morigages, real estate, those are the issues.

"Like hermit crabs," says Joanna, we move into. . .lives. . .we dispossess the owners." The subplot of the play is crabs. Eventually several characters get them. They start scratching, which makes them even crabbier. Perhaps they should get out of the house and go for a swim.

The acting is plausible. The set by Patricia Woodbridge is substantial. There is mood music by Nicholas Mey-ers. Miss Lamb is also the author of "Mod Donna" and "Apple Pie." "Crab Quadrille" will run through Sunday,

Woody Guthrie, 'Bound for Glory,' Gives Life to Movie at the Coronet

By VINCENT CANBY

Like the guets of honor who won't be allowed entrance until he proper moment, the presence of Woody Guthrie hovers for a ong time-felt but unheard-outside "Bound for Glory," the film hiography that Hal Ashby has made of one of America's greatest folk ingers and composers. Then, at he film's end, as the final credits re unreeling, the slightly raspy, oice of the real Woody Guthrie is Envited in via the soundtrack

The movie, which until that moenent has solemnly recorded sected events of Woody's life in pepression America, comes sud-bienly to life in a medley of Guthe ie songs sung by him and others. he songs are huoyant, funny, hat somehow elude the rest of the im, even though "Bound for lory" has apparently been made Tun ricken by its social conscience.

The film, which opened yester-ied in the part of the coronet, has a number of the part of particular David Carradine's dry, and day auoted performance as the young is 100dy Guthrie who passes through the film more or less as if he were 16 camera, storing away impresons and emotions that only occaonally are allowed to erupt with amatic force. Mr. Carradine may duck, and certainly not easy to live with. At the height of the Depression, he abandoned his wife and two small daughters in Texas and took to the road, heading for California on foot and freight car. When he began to receive a little recognition as a country singer on a California radio station, he retrieved his family but abandoned them again. His feelings for "the people" never quite extended far enough to include his wife and

Robert Getchell, who wrote the screenplay based on Woody's autohiography, doesn't permit the screen Woody to sound any more articulate than your average, tongue-tied man-in-the-street inter-

Seems to me something ought to be done about this," says the film's Woody early on, commenting oo the disastrous conditions in the Texas dust bowl. Later, to explain why he had run away from home again, he says, "I had to touch the people again. _...The worst that can happeo to a guy is to cut him-self off from the folks."

Had this sort of talk beeo comhined with more of Woody's music as the film unfolds, the result might not have seemed as ultimately barren and trivial as it now does, but Mr. Ashby didn't want "Bound for Glory" to be a mu-sical. That's understandable, though to separate Woody from his music, as the film does to a great extent, is to separate us from a major portion of his experience.

Woody's music is galvanizing, upbeat, convinced of the possibilities for a better society, committed to change. Like Woody's impatience with social and political injustice, the music is unequivocal, decisive. The movie isn't.

It ambles through conventionally pitiful scenes of dust-bowl poverty and union-busting, and shows us Woody refusing to compromise his ideals to get along in show husiness. On only two occasions, however, do we have some sense of what drove the man.

One is an old-fashioned hoedown with a group of fruit pickers and the other is a sequence in which Woody, attempting to organize workers in a canning plant, is beat-en up by company thugs. Both se-quences make their points as much through music as through anything through music as through anything that happens.

Though Mr. Carradine's performance is almost the entire film, he receives fine support from the other actors, including Melinda Dillon, who plays both his abandoned wife and a singing partner named Memphis Sue, and Ronny Cox, who plays a fictionalized version of one of Woody's real-life sidekicks and

"Bound for Glory," which has been rated PG ("Farental Guid-once Suggested"), contains some mildly rough dialogue.

HICAGO, Dec. 5—One of the endary golden moments in this r's lustrous musical history was ember 1921, when within the ce of two weeks audiences here world premieres of two kofiev works: the Piano Conto No. 3 and the opera "The for Three Oranges." Last ht, somewhat belatedly, the section of those events was relived en Lyric Opera of Chicago presited a new production of the ram Victor Seroff's English unstation.

nslation. era took its somewhat abridged sion of "The Love for Three langes" on tour in the early there nowadays, the opera is problem, which the Lyric pro-ction did not entirely solve.

One of the difficulties is that Skofiev puts singers through the ope in his operas of this period, en covering the vocal line with less or writing in ranges that do suit non-Slavic voices. The

Lync cast, while not as strong down the line as the company's reputation might have suggested, satisfied in spots,

Richard Gill (The Ring of Hearts), Mariana Christos (Princess Ninetta), Frank Little (The Prince) and Joy. Davidson (Clarissa) were able to sing pleasingly while keep-ing the fun moving. The Truffal-dino of Jack Trussel was a hit heavy-handed, however, and Klara Barlow's Fata Morgana carried over her hardness of heart into the vocal realm, a doubtful stroke of characterization. Alan Titus as Pantaloon and William Dooley as Leandro were big names in slight character roles. Everyone, how-ever, could have taken lessons in hurlesque from the veteran bass Italo Tajo, who stole his sceoe as Creonta, the giant cook. This was a 10-foot-tall Creonta with a mountainous chest to match, and Mr. Tajo squeezed every possible laugh

Bruno Bartoletti's orchestra struck occasional snags hut gave a respectable account of the score, and the male chorus of Eccentrics in particular distinguished itself by making the English text understandable to an extent several of the principal singers could not duplicate.

That, however, brings up an-other difficulty. The libretto, which Prokofiev himself composed after Prokofiev himself composed after Carlo Gozzi's parodistic comedy, has lost some of the point it had had half a century ago. Gozzi was mocking the commedia dell'arte tradition in Italy, and on top of this Prokofiev laid his own satire of Russian operatic clichés. Since neither of these targets looms very important today, even the best production will lack some substance as satire, and at worst can become a parade of stunts and gags.

Marianna Christos, Frank Little Keeping the fun moving

The music, too, strikes the ear now as rather snort-winded, though the standard concert excerpts such as the March and Scherzo enlivened the action predictably this time. The Lyric production was designed by Ulisse Santicchi and staged by Giulio Chazalettes, and Lyric's artistic director, Mr. Barto-letti, conducted. All three are colleagues in Florence and elsewhere, and the production reflected their ohvious understanding of the commedia dell'arte approach to theater. If you like operas full of acrobats, magic, smoke screens and grotesqueries of all sorts, look no further.

Her basic t is something that only the latest singers possess: She is impletely in touch with her voice dear art—everything she does, any vocal and interpretive decimal, sounds absolutely right and witable.

Miss DeGaetani is best knowo a specialist in contemporary mubut recently her repertory has Panded to include a wide variety styles from German lieder to ephen Foster. Her program at the tropolitan Museum on Saturday phi, the first of suree concerts, is typical in this respect. It in-ided vocal music from many periods, all done with Miss DeGae-tani's uncommonly limpid mezzo-soprano and penetrating musical insights.

A delicate sacred cantata by the 17th-century composer Christian Ritter. "O amantissime sponse Jesu," opened the recital, accompanied by strings and harpsichord. Next Miss DeGaetani turned her at-tention to a group of Mozart lieder, followed by Ravel's "Chansons Madécasses," a selection of John Dowland songs, and finally an early work by Luigi Dailapiccola, "Divertimento in Quattro Esercizi," writteo in 1934 before the composer adopted Schoenberg's serial length about the many exquisite details that Miss DeGaetani and the 10 musicians who accompanied her brought to this wonderful pro-gram. The Ravel songs were particularly riveting. It was refreshing to hear this cycle sung for once with every note precisely and ac-curately pitched, and Miss DeGae-tani caught the feelings of languor, hostile bitterness and erotic expectaton through subtle plays of vocal shading and textual accent.

In contrast, the Mozart, Dowland and Ritter pieces were projected with an artial simplicity and exactly the right degree of emotional weight that instantly communi-cated the essence of each sorg. A remarkably simulating recital, in short, by a singer of extraordinary musical and intellectual refine-

Manuel Orantes of Spain broke Eddie Dibbs's service three straight times and posted a 6-4, 6-2 victory over the Miamian.

Harold Solomoo easily whipped Brian Gottfried, 6-4, 6-2. Gottfried fell apart after taking a 4-1 lead in the first set. He took Schomon to five deuces in the sixth game, then Solomon held and reeled off seven straight games.

At match point in the 12th game of the third set. Viles hit an apparent volley winner, but a linesman called it out. After a brief discussion, Frank Hammond, the umpire, overruled the linesman and gave the match to Vilas.

Ramirez, the overall winner on the Grand Prix circuit this year, broke Viles in the 11th game of the first set and was serving for the set in the 12th game with a 40-15 lead. But Viles forced two dences and finally broke service when Ramirez hit a backband into the net. Vilas then took the bebreaker, 8 points to 6.

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J., Dec. 5-Ed Marshall, a receiver the Lions didn't want, and Brad Van Pelt, a linebacker who always wanted to be a Lion, led the Giants to a 24-10 victory over Detroit today.

Marshall caught two touchdown passes from Craig Morton, and Van Pelt made two interceptions and two quarterback sacks, as tha Giants continued their drive to respectability under Coach John McVay.

The Giants' quarterback was booed by the crowd of 66,069 in the pregame introduction, and his picture, shown on the end-zone scoreboards with 40 seconds remaining to the sloppily played contest, was just as vigorously booed.

In between, Morton completed 12 of 24 passes for 195 yards, scramhled out of danger from the Detroit blitzes time after time and directed the Glants' biggest offensive output of the season. The Giants gained a total of 383 yards from scrimmage, including their season-high total of 196 on the ground, and did so without the injured Larry Csonka. Talent is another reason why the Cardinals have a 9-4 von-lost record—talent the Giants ignored and the Jets dis-Carded. Now in his eighth season, John Zook is a 6-foot-5-fach, 250-pound defensive end from Kansas where Vernon Vanoy was his teammate.

"Vernon was more of a physical specimen, 6-7, a big strong guy," Zook recalled. "I wasn't surprised he was drafted ahead of me."

The Giants took Vernon Vanoy in the third round, but he never made it. The Los Angeles Rams selected John Zook in the fourth round. He was traded to the Atlanta Falcons. who traded him to the Cardinals this year. He is credited Giant and Jet loyalists shudder. "We had two losing seasons in a row before Don Coryell took over as coach bere," Larry Stallings said, "His first year we had another losing season during the transition but now we have e chance to be in the playoffs for the third straight year. He set certain standards and be picked his players more for character and ettitude than for ability. He's quiet, but he's tough. He'll fight you."

Larry Stallings leughed in recalling an argument between Don Coryell and the driver of a bus the Cardinals

"The bus driver was twice as big as Don," ha said, "but Don wes ready to fight him. That's the way he is. Since he came in, only 16 players are left from the team he took over. He's got certain standards, like wide receivars have to block and cornerbacks have to come up and hit. Or they don't play. It's that simple. And it belps create the tempo you need to win."

The Half-Page Ad

Ordinarily, the Oakland Raiders perform with a jazz tempo. But in their nationally televised game with the Cincinnati Bengals here tomorrow night, cynics are wondering if the Raiders will play as if listening to a lullaby. In today's Oakland Tribune, a half-page ad showed a sketch of a uniformed Raider player sleeping in a four-poster bed, with two sets of goal posts providing the four posts. Above the sleeping Raider was e message:

"Dear Oakland Raiders: Wa can't blame you for wanting to lie down this Monday night. By sleeping through your gama with Cincinnati, you probably won't have to face the Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers in the play-offs. Pleasant dreams."

The ad was placed by a Pittsburgh restaurant chain end the message was as clear as the cynics premise—a and the message was as clear as the cynics premise—a in the last two American Conference championship games. Since the Raiders need a victory to clinch the home-field advantage throughout the playoffs, Al Davis, the Raiders owner, and John Madden, their coach, have hranded such suspicion "utterly ridiculous." But if the Raiders lose tomorrow night, a victory over the San Diego Chargers next Sunday would still assure the Raiders the home field edge in the playoffs. Al Davis has thrived on intrigue throughout his Raider reign. Now that intrigue is haunting him.

The cynics may have raised the question, but the Raiders must answer it. Their tempo will show if it's jazz or a the second half. Johnson was the man he had beaten on the 52-yard play. Marshall knows Johnson well. They live next door to each other in Corpus. Christi, Tex.

"They were taking my inside moves away," said Marshall, "so I told Craig I could fly hy them. On the one where Levi tipped the hall, I knew he was just going to get a piece of it, so I just waited. 'Concentration' is what they call it."

Cousino, a 210-pound reserve linebacker who was cut by the Chicago Bears this year—"because they thought I'm too small"—blocked a Herman Weaver punt late in the first half, in the Giants' second touch down. It was scored on a 3-yard run hy Doug Kotar. Cousino also recovered a fumble and made three tackles with the kicking teams.

Csonka, who tore knee ligaments last week, was replaced by Marsh White, who gained 51 yards on nine carries (including the team's longest run from scrimmage this season, a 29-yarder oo the final play of the first half), before suffering a concussion and being replaced by Larry Watkins, another former Lion.

Gordoo Bell picked up 73 yards on 15 rushes, and in one series in the second half, as the Giants were consuming time, the rookie from Michigan carried the ball on six straight plays. The defense which features two other rookies, Harry Carson and Troy Archer, held Detroit scoreless in the day. The fourth-year linebacker from Michigan State, who has expressed a desire to play closer to his family in Owosso, Mich., and who grew up rooting for the Lions, made nine tackle and one assist, including two of the six sacks of Greg Landry, the Detroit quarterback.

Van Pelt was the defensive star to-

"Maybe I'd like to finish out my career with the Lions," said Van Pelt, who is playing out his option with the Giants, "hnt that's someday. It'll be awful hard to leave after four years here with the frustrations we've had, the records we've had."

The record this year is still only 3-10, but many of the frustrations seem to be ending. Not all, though, Injuries continue. Last week Csooka and Tom. Mullen became the 10th and 11th players to go on the injured reserve list. Today, besides the concussion to White, who was going to a hospital for a checkup, the major injuries were to Carson, who sprained his right ankle badly, and Bill Bryant, a starting cor-nerback, who pulled a muscle to the lower part of his abdomen. And Bob Tucker, the tight end, who caught six passes, will undergo X-rays for a pos-sible break of the ring tinger of his

McVay Praises Van Pelt

McVay said Van Pelt's play had been "inspired." Giants, in addition to Van Pelt's two interceptions, recovered three Lion fumbles. Detroit intercepted Morton twice, and Charlie Weaver took the ball away from Kotar once. . Lion quarterbacks have been sacked 62 times this season. . . One of Van Pelt's No. 10 hlue perseys, with a black armband, is missing, and the linebacker is offering $500 for its return, "with no questions asked," The armband is in memory of his father, who died last July and to whom Van Pelt has dedicated this season.

Furthermore, the Patriots beve hed only one winning season since Nev lle joioed up from Mississippi State, and that came in his second year, 1966.

After the Saints, a team with very little offense, had cut the Patriot lead to 13-6, on Rich Szaro'z second field goal, it looked as if theer might not be any celebrating in New England to-night. Then the home team, which had played so iodifferently on offense through the first three quarters, staged two scoring drives, 78 and 44 yards, to lock up the decision.

Steve Grogan, the quarterback, scored the first time on a 10-yard rollout run and passed to lke Forte, a reserve back, for the second touchdown Perhaps Grogao never did score thet first touchdown, He lost the ball crossing the goal line, but the officiels ruled he had had possession long enough to score. Grogao, the second-year man from Kansas State, had one of his lesser games. He was overthrowing his passes and completed only four of 17 in the first half, nine of 23 over all for just 108 yards. So the Pats managed to get by on an off-day, the mark of a good team. Doo Calhoun, the fullback playing be-cause Sam Cunningham was still in-jured, gained over 100 yards rushing for the fourth game in a row. He had

Young to Coach at Purdue

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind., Dec. 5 (AP) -Jim Young was named loday as head football coach at Purdue University. He succeeds Alex Agase, who was released two weeks ago. Terms of the contract were oot announced, but it was reported that Young, who has been head coach at the University of Arizona for the last four years, received a five-year pact at $35,000 a year.

George King, the Purdue athletic director, said Young's record at Arizo-oa and his coaching experience in the oa and his coaching experience in the Midwest were instrumental in his selection. Young was formerly an assistant coach at Miami of Ohio and was defensive coordinator under Bo Schembechler at Michigan for five years. At Arizona, which plays in the Western Athletic Conference, Young's teams had a 44-13 woo-lost record.

"We're extremely excited that a coach with the national reputation of success, and diversified background such as Jim Young owns has agreed to return to the Midwest and lead our football program," Kiog said, "Jim has been a winner everywhere and has served in virtually every capacity as an assistant coach," King continued.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 5—Indiana's heroics at Franklin Field ended today when San Francisco sent the Hoosiers to their first defeat of the season and captured the National Collegiate soccer title for the second year in a row.

With a better defense and a number of experiened forwards, the Dons won, 1-0, before 5,981 fans on a goal hy Andy Atueghu. For the second straight year, Atuegbu was voted the best offensive player of the tournament.

It was the eighth shutout in the last 10 games for the Dons. The defeat was the first in 20 games for the Hoosiers. who were in only their fourth year of varsity competition. Only one foreign-born player was on their roster.

lo the consolation game Hartwick defeated Clemson, 4-3. Three Clemson players were ejected in the rough contest. Clemson committed 39 fouls to six for Hartwick. All the scoring, the ejections and most of the fouls came in the second half, in which the Warriors from upstate New York raced to

With superb goalkeeping by Peter Arnautoff, the only American on a defense crowded with Norwegians, the Dons didn't allow the Hoosiers to break through the middle, which Indiana did yesterday in defeating Hartwick in the semifinals.

Coach Jerry Yeagley's players thus had to try from the flanks with long crosses, and that was where Arnautoff

Special to The New York Times exceled. He gathered everything that came his way from both sides.

Indiana missed a chance to tie after Atuegbu's goal nine minutes before the end of the half. The Hoosiers were awarded a penalty kick when Rudy Glenn was tripped inside the penalty area. Charlie Fajkus, who had not missed such a kick before, sent Arnautoff the wrong way, but his shot

"I miskicked it," Fajkus said afterward with tears in his eyes. "I blew it, man, I missed the big one." Fajkus got the only goal in the Midwest final, which sent the Hoosiers to the championship tournament. pionship tournament.

"I am very proud of my players because they played an experienced team on equal terms," said Yeagley, who has brought Indiana's soccer program a long way in a short time.

Indiana's problem was that Angelo
DiBernerdo, who played with an injury, was ineffective. Steve Negoesco, the San Francisco coach, who saw Di-Bernardo score both Indiana's goals in the 2-1 victory over Hartwick yester-day, had ordered John Brooks to guard him closely.

Hartwick, which had several hundred supporters in the stands, got goals from Gary Vogel, Angrik Stapanow, Phil Wallis and Art Napolitano. Bene-dict Popoola scored Clemson's first two goals and Kenneth Illodigwe got the last one.

Tresch Outraces Stenmark in Slalom

ST. MORITZ, Switzerland, Dec. 5. (AP)—Walter Tresch of Switzerland beat Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden today in the final of the men's parallel slalom in the closing program of the World Series of Skiing. Stenmark missed a gate in the first run and took a 1.5-second penalty. Trying to make up in the second run, he fell after the halfway mark of the 26-gate course while he was slightly shead. Tresch's victory along with that of Lise-Marie Morerod in the women's final yesterday moved Switzerland into second place in the combined standing. Italy won the World Series which began in that country last Tuesday with 91 points, Switzerland had 72 and France and Czechoslovakia tied for third with 42 each.

The World Series races do not count in the World Cup competition that will hegin next Wednesday at Val d'Isere, Bohumir Zeman, a young Czechoslovak, beat Gustavo Thoeni of Italy in the final for third place. Thoeni was 1.289 seconds behind after the first leg and missed a gate in the second. Sten-mark beat Zeman and Tresch triumphed over Thoeni in the semifinal run over the sun-drenched St. Moritz slope.

Piero Gros of Italy led the early field but lost to Zeman in the fifth-to-last round. The only surviving American, Cary Adgate of Boyne City, Mich., lost in the fourth-to-last round when he fell far behind Bruno Noekler of Italy in the second leg after beating him the first time. Adgate had beaten Josef Prieller of Austria in the previous round in which Phil Mahre of White Pass, Wash, lost to Peter Luescher of

ing, N.Y., lost to Tresch. Hard, icy snow made for fast racing. The times averaged 25 seconds for one

Seven much-recruited basketball players, whose names appeared prominently on the various high school all-America teams last March, played key roles in the fortunes of their college teams this weekend. All but Darryl Griffith of Louisville were on winning squads Saturday night

Richard Branning, who left sunny California for the Notre Dame back-court, scored 18 points, handed off for five assists and made four steals as the Irish defeated Valparaiso, 93-56. The success was Notre Dame's third straight. The Irish have not lost this

Ron Perry of Catholic Memorial in Roxbury, Mass., who went to Holy Cross because his father is the school's athletic director, collected 31 points in the Crusaders' 96-85 success over Ver-

Sly Williams, the 6-8 forward from New Haven who started a controversy when he enrolled at the University of Rhode Island after he had been expected to go to Providence, scored 18 points in the Rams' 75-65 victory over St. Joseph's of Philadelphia.

Jonathan Moore, 6 feet 7 inches, who stayed in South Carolina, collected 28 points and grabbed 14 rebounds in Fur-man's 100-80 rout of Wofford, Eddie Lee; a New Yorker who played his senior year of high school in Milwankee, scored 20 points and led a Cincinnati spurt of 18 unanswered points in the Bearcats' 103-69 romp over South Florida.

As a resuit, three of its players fouled out, and a fourth, Tom Kavanagh, was ejected from the game for a flagrant. foul against Steve Grote. The Wolver-ines won by 78-57. After the gaine, there were differences of opinion by the opposing coaches over the definition of "physical basketball." "You take your life to your hands on the fast break," said a vehement Johnny Orr, Michigan coach. "I like to play physical, but that's not what I call physical. When you drive in there and knock people down, that's not physical. I was hoping none of of our guys would get hurt.

Orr was particularly upset when Kavanagh knocked Grote down on a fast hreak it was this play for which Kavanagh was thrown out of the game. When he knocked Grote down, would you call that a sterling play?" said Orr. "More like a cheap shot. I'm surprised Grote didn't pop the guy."

And what did Dick Stewart, the new Fordham coach, think?

We were very overmatched, talentwise," said Stewart, an assistant coach last season at Oregon, whose Ducks played a rough game. Of the Kavamagh incident, he said: "It wasn't meant to be a dirty play. Kavanagh is a freshman trying to do his best. He didn't want

General Electric has been laying off workers in several cities well in advance of the usual Christmas shutdown

Layoffs at G.E. Appliance Plant Dim Holiday Luster for Louisville Workers

By REGINALD STUART

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—Bad news about the economy is oot something a per-son oot of work wants to hear. But, as Gregory I. Stepro signed up for unemployment compensation again last week, the Government was reporting an increase in the jobless rate to 8.1 percent in November.

Mr. Stepro is one of 8,500 workers here being laid off for several weeks (in advance of the regular two-week Christmas shutdown) by the General Electric Company, the nation's largest producer of electric products. For him the layoff at the G.E. Appliance Park is for three extra weeks. Like many other workers at the facility, he has already gone through several extra weeks of no work this year. and he was laid off for five mooths

As economic indicators have sug-gested in recent mooths, the nation's economy is not recovering as fast as many Government and business leaders had expected. The appliance in-dustry, although it got-off to a fast start early this year, has been shut-ting down operations in a number of states to allow swelling inventories to shrink. In such situations. workers feel the impact.

"It seems we're in about the same shape as we were the first of the year-just holding our own," said the 26-year-old Mr. Stepro as his wife. Patricia, 24, sat nearly holding their 5-month-old daughter. Tina. "It's supposed to pick up the first of the year," he said. "But, from what I hear, I don't know."

Steady Expansion in 1977 Is Forecast by Economist

Prediction by 12 of Modest Growth Falls Far Short of Goals Set by Carter

مكذامنه لاصل

The coming year will see a modest but steady expansion in the nation's economy, with slightly lower rates of both infla-tion and unemployment according to a dozen of the nation's leading economists. The 12 members of The Cooference Board's Economic Forum released yester day their semiannual report oo Americao business outlook. Their tone was ooe of cautious optimism and, in a rare display of unanimity, not one of the analysis predicted a renewal of recession sext among many consumers and husinessmer "Our views of the actual short-term ecocomic outlook for the United States are comfortable, if not eothusiastic,' said Albert T. Sommers, chief economis of The Conference Board and chairman of the forum. He added, however, that there are many factors in the domestic and international economic environment that "are genuine causes of concern", such as the re-emergence of business stagnation and the persistence of inflation around tha world.

What the private economists, who made their individual forecasts last month believe will happen next year falls far short of what President-elect Jimmy Car-ter has set as his goals.

Their report forecasts real growth of 4.8 percent in 1977, compared with 3.9 perceot on an annual basis in October; an average unemployment rate of 7.1 percent, versus an estimated rate of 7.6 percent this year, and a 5.6 percent increase io the Consumer Price Index, against 5.8 percent in 1976.

During First Year in Office

In contrast, a little more than a week ago Mr. Carter declared that he intended to produce a 6 percept rate of growth in the economy and a lowering of the un-employment rate to about 6.4 percent during his first year in office.

To accomplish these goals, Mr. Carter s considering a substantial tax reductioo to be enacted early next year and various job-creating programs in housing and

The economists appeared to agree that "some further fiscal stimulus may well be in order in early 1977," as Mr. Som-mers, a Carter adviser, put it. Among the measures approvingly cited by the forum were a $15 billion tax rebate on 1976 personal income taxes accompanied 1976 personal income taxes, accompanied by some increase in public employment spending; an enlarged program of reot subsidies, to stimulate multifamily hous-ing; a reduction in Social Security taxes, and a liberalization of depreciation al-spending and new business investment. More unqualified optimism was seen in the housing industry, perhaps because housing was so depressed in 1975 and 1976, and because money for bousing is now widely available. Albert G. Mata-

Rohert Bitter, a trader and analyst for Reynolds & Company, who specializes in cocoa and similar commodities, commented, "It's in a state of flux." However, chocolate makers have plenty of inventory nn hand through the hig choc-olate-eating period of Christmas and Easter, he believes.

The recent record high prices, about three times the 48-cents-a-pound level of November 1975, reflect the continuing shortage of cocoa in the major producing nations of Africa, such as

Bankrupt International City's Ten Offices to Open Today Under 🗞 an Accord With F.D.I.C.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 5-Deposits totaling about $160 million in the insolvent International City Bank and Trust Company-which was closed by Louisiana officials Friday-are being taken over by the Bank of New Orleans and Trust Company, which plans to open the failed hank's 10 offices for normal husioess Mooday,

The arrangement between the Bank of New Orleans and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, which was eppointed receiver for the hankrupt iostitution, was approved by a state court here shortly before 4 A.M. today, after marathon negotiating sessions that began Friday

The Bank of New Orleans, which has $334 million in deposits, has agreed to pay F.D.I.C. an $300,000 purchase premium for all of the other bank's deposits, and will also take over about $4.5 millioo in consumer loans and $34 million in investment grade securities. F.D.I.C. offi-cials said that they had retained other assets of the failed bank, which have a book value of about $126.5 million.

However, about $72 million of these assets are loans the F.D.I.C. has classified as losses or of doubtful or substandard value, according to the Louisiana Governor, Edwin Edwards, and Kenneth E. Pickering, the state commissioner of financial institutions.

Sources close to the transfer negotiations said these loans—including many issued before loternational City Baok experienced the first of three major owoersponsible for the hank's failure. Factors in the Pricing of Tender Offers

By ROBERT METZ A recent offer by the Standard Pressed Steel Company to buy back 750,000 to 900,000 of its shares at a 50 percent premium over the then-current mid-November market price has raised questions about the strategy of pricing tender offers. A loog-time sharebolder of the com-pany ooted that Kidder, Peabody & Company, the manager of the tender, was also managing a Sun Company tender offer for 2.5 million of its shares at no premium over the market. The Standard Pressed Steel share holder toought it odd that his company was oot only paying a hefty premium but also borrowing the money to do it, while Sun was huying hack its shares out of cash reserves. A telephone call to Martio Siegel

a vice president and stockholder of Kidder, Peabody and who is involved in both tenders, brought a discussion of considerations in pricing shares for tender purposes.

Mr. Siegel acknowledged that Standard Pressed Steel's offer to huy shares at S9 was made a day after the shares had traded at S78. The book value of Standard Pressed Steel, a maker of industrial fasteners, was $14.86 a share on Sept. 30 and would rise to $15.80 if the company got 750,000 shares and to $16.04 if 900,000 shares were ten-

Mr. Siegel, asserting that each tender was unique, noted that one of the principal differences between Standard Pressed Steel and Sun was that the 'float"-shares available for tenderwas relatively small for Standard

Pressed Steel and large for Sun. H. Thomas Hallowell Jr., son of the founder of Standard Pressed Steel, currently owns 22.5 percent of the shares and will own 26.4 percent if the teoder draws 750,000 shares and 27.4 percent if it draws 900,000 shares. Since he already owns 1.2 million shares out of ahout S million outstanding, a tender for 900,000 shares would involved almost a quarter of the float.

By contrast, there are 60 million shares of Suo Company outstanding. so that 2.5 million shares amounts to 5 percent of the total.

Mr. Siegel said that another major factor was the recent market history of the shares. The $43 a share the Sun Company, formerly the Sun Oil Compaoy, is offering for tendered stock is a high for the year and a price one would have to go back a year or two

In the case of Standard Pressed Steel, its shares traded as high as 9% this vear-1112 last year-and were at their low for the year at the time

Mr. Siegel said that it was also important to consider the oumber of

The fewer shares traded, the highe in a tender, he said.

coosideration in pricing a tender offer. In the Standard Pressed Steel case there were few large blocks and no indication that any blocks would be

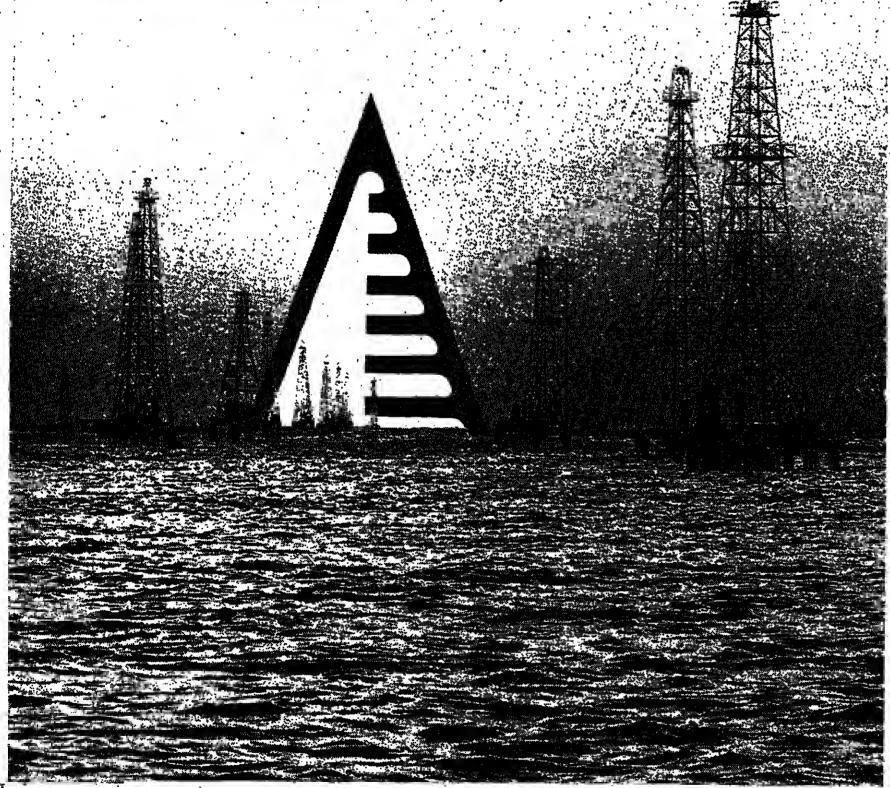

In the Sun Company teoder, the bankers knew that the Glen Mede Trust planned to tender 1.13 million shares. Such a move oo the part of a major shareholder "influeoces" small share-holders, Mr. Siegel said. In case of oversubscription, both tenders call for pro-rata acceptance. One final factor is the immediate and long-term prospects of the company. Mr. Siegel said that Standard Pressed Steel was emerging from a period of depressed earnings and expected its husiness to improve. The Sun Company has already had a good year and its percentage earnings jump in the next year will oot be so large as the other company's, he said This factor, too, calls for a premium for Standard Pressed Steel.

Despite all these factors, the longtime shareholder in Standard Pressed Steel said that be was bothered by the fact that tenders of 750.000 shares would cost the company $6.75 million and tenders of 900,000 would cost $8.1. million, which the company will have . to borrow at half a percentage pointabove the prime lending rate.

The Pyramid has energy specialists in New York, London, Houston and occasionally, in Badak, Kalimantan.

You might expect to find the Bankers Trust Pyramid in three of the locations listed above.

After all, those are the three principal financial oil centers of the world, and Bankers Trust has been heavily involved in energy, with a specialized energy group, since 1948.

But Badak, Kalimantan?
Yes, and Medicine Lodge, Kansas and Okmulgee, Oklahoma and Abu Dhabi, and in the middle of the North Sea. In fact, our energy staff will go anywhere our customers need us to go.

engineers, geologists and economists, we're one of the few banks large enough and expert enough to analyze and meet the energy industry's financial needs. Especially on a continuing basis.

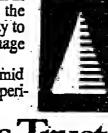

Our recent study of capital resources for energy through 1990 is being used by advance planners throughout the industry.
(Actually, these planners may be the only ones who can appreciate it—it's quite a detailed work.)

Whatever your requirements, our commitment to the energy industry is total, and were staffed in depth to meet that commitment.

But there's more to Bankers Trust than an Energy Group. Wherever you see the Bankers Trust Pyramid, you're dealing with a full service bank in the fullest sense of the word, with the capacity to raise, lend and manage money worldwide.

Campbell-Ewald Seeks Frank Agency

By PHILLIP H. DOUGHERTY

Clinton E. Frank Inc., Chicago, which was almost ecquired by Campbell-Mithum, Mineapolis, earlier this year, is now on the verge of being acquired by Campbell-Ewald, Detroit. Must be something about the name.

The Frank shop, badly hurt last year by the loss of the $30 million Toyota account, would continue to operate under its present name if the agreement is approved by its stockholders on Dec. 23. Thomas B. Adams, chairman of the Detroit agency, would also become the chairman at Frank. And Mr. Frank, the 61-year-old former Yale football hero, would be honorary chairman but remaio active. Denald H.

Rutz would continue as president.
Campbell-E-wald, since 1572 one of the Interpublic Group of Companies, is billing in the neighborhood of $155 milfrom General Motors. It is the agency for nine of G.M.'s units, including the Chevrolet division, which spends at least $80 million a year. Mr. Adams for years has tried ways of increasing the percentage of non-G.M. billings.

This acquisition will not only give

This acquisition will not only give him about $40 million in fresh billings but also new facilities in Chicago, Los but also new racing in Chicago, 10s Angeles, San Francisco and Richmond. The Frank agency billed approxi-mately $31.5 million last year, $8 mil-lion less than 1974. Its client list io-cludes Continental Oil, Deering Mil-liken, Kohler, Kraft Foods, Stokely-Van

Camp, Squirt and the Peanst Shop of Williamsburg, Va., which could become very important next year. Whitehall Moves 4 Brands

The Whitehall Laboratories division of American Home Prodocts is switching four brands to Kelly, Nason Inc. from Grey Advertising, Robert J. Palmer, president of the angecy, confirmed. The billings are estimated at $4 million. It is the first American Home assignment for Kelly, Nason al-though Mr. Palmer had worked on its business at Cunningham & Walsh.

The products involved are Dristan Capsules; Freezooe, a corn remover; InfraRub, and Sleep-Eze. The agency will bandle them on a full service basis except for broadcast advertising placement, which will be done by American Home's in-house operation.

Bates Wins RCA Account

Ted Bates & Company has been picked from among six competing agen-cies for the RCA corporate account, which was resigned in September hy the J. Walter Thompson Company. Bates, already the agency for the Hertz Corporation, an RCA subsidiary, has oever had a corporate account before. Isn't that exciting? New horizons, new challenges. That sort of thing.

Elsewhere in the world of electronics, Audiovox, which makes equipment for car radios and has never had an agency before, has appointed Baron, Costello & Fine to be its full service agency. John C. Olney of Audiovox is quoted as saying "We expect to spend a min-imum of $1 million because at a lower level we really can't begin to compete effectively." Love that man.

Texas Monthly Expands

In a move that shows it has really moved into the big time, Texas Monthly, the award-winning magazine, has opened an advertising sales office in New York. At 1 East 42d Street, to be precise. Its former ad rep, Walter Gale, will run the place.

Data on Laundry Habits

But Friday and Saturday are the favor-ites for almost all other forms of cleaning in the home. more is being made available (for a price) by the Market Research Corporation of America, which has taken a fantastically detailed peek into a sampling of households to discover what and how cleaning and laundry products are being used.

Thanks to information supplied in the course of a year by a subsample of 2,000 households from its national panel of 7,500, M.R.C.A. knows that panel of 7,500, M.R.C.A. knows that the highest percentage (33) of weekly cleaning activities goes to washing and scowing, while 25 percent of the time is spent dusting, 19 percent vaccuming and only 4 percent each for stain removal (also a largely Monday activity) and waxing and polishing.

It also knows that the average household does six loads of wash a week, 85 percent of them at home in machines. 4 percent by hand and 11 machines, 4 percent by hand and 11 percent in com-operated laundries.

The entire report costs $110,000. A bargain, since its components, the usage reports and purchase data, are $60,000 each.

Research Fund Growing

The Advertising Research Foundation reports that a number of adverti-sers, magazines and agencies have so far piedged $70,000 in four weeks toward funding the Magazine Research Development Committee. The target is $200,000. A more ambitious program, which would have cost $631,000, was scrapped in January because only $425,000 could be raised.

Gains at Burnett Agency

On Friday the Leo Burnett Company, Chicago, had its usual end-of-the-year breakfast for the gang and, as it usu-ally does, announced what kind of a year it is going to be: Good. Worldwide billings were up about 16.4 percent from last year to $725 million, thanks to a 27 percent domestic boost to $506 million. That more than made up for a 2 perceot international drop caused mostly by declining exchange rates.

because a freeze in the Florida growing area can damage crops badly and thus affect price trends. Not so this year.

Trade concentration has been focused on the serious marketing problems attendant upon prospects for a 1976-77 frozen orange juice production of mammoth proportions," the Commodity Research Bureau reports. The bureau publishes statistical and analytical data about basic commodities.

It points out that growers in Florida have devised more sophisticated ways to prevent crop damage than were available a few years ago.

At the same time the orange juice producers face increased competition from Brazil, which wants to send more orange juice to the United States. These factors could produce what the hureau calls "downsida price pressure."

The January orange juice futures contract has swung from a high of 70 cents a pound in September 1975 to about 46 cents in October this year. On Friday it closed at 47.3 cents.

Coffee Outlook Seems To Remain High Prices

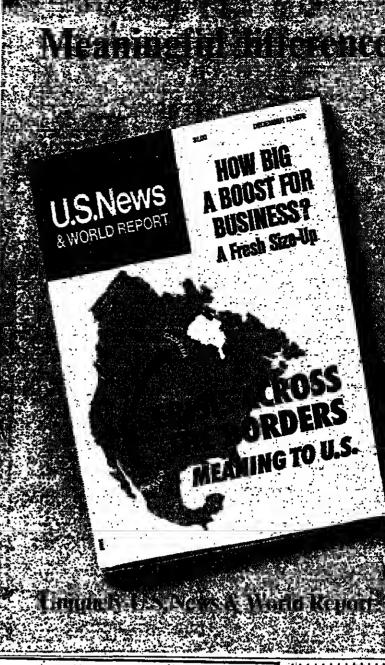

Despite some indications of consumer resistance to high prices, coffee futures contracts continue near record high price levels. Some analysts even think in terms of high prices before any significant breaks come.

Recently Brazil, the principal coffee producer, increased its export fees on coffee. Recently this country's major coffee roasters, such as General Foods, announced higher wholesale prices. At the consuming end, many coffee drinkers find that the cup of coffee that recently cost 25 cents has been raised in price to 30 cents.

On the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange, activity in coffee futures has perked along with the high prices. The March delivery, which closed Friday at $1.93 38/100, a new high, had previously ranged between 94.86 cents a pound and a high of $1.91 30/100

The Commodity Research Bureau's index of futures prices (1967-100) closed last Friday at 201.3. The index stood at 200.1 the week before and at 192.5 a year ago.

REMEMBER THE NEEDIEST!

The TV Squeeze. How an airline can avoid it.

Let's face it. Television is a powerful advertising medium. That's why everyone wants to get aboard. And that's why you're feeling the TV Squeeze.

Network time is a limited commodity. Just 66 hours a week and no more. Apparently not enough to go around.

Avails are tight and getting tighter all the time. And what's available costs up to 35% more than it did last year.

(No prime time available)

It's a runaway seller's market—with no relief in sight. And the typical TV advertiser is asking himself, "Do I accept lower advertising weight or a much higher budget?"

What are the alternatives?

Fortunately, there are alternatives. Most advertisers know the strengths of a Magazine/TV mix. The two media complement each other demographically and in the way each communicates. TV is hard to beat when it comes to product demonstration.

On the other hand, magazines are able to give a more thorough "reason why." And their editorial environment can lend prestige and credibility to a product or service.

But what's more, surprising as it may sound, combinations of magazines—even single magazines like Newsweek—can deliver the same kind of big ratings you expect from TV.

For example, Newsweek's rating of 19.4 (men 18 to 49) tops ABC's Wide World of Sports, NBA Basketball and the CBS Sports Spectacular combined.

By buying less TV and more magazines, you can beat the Squeeze—and come out ahead.

What can an airline do?

Let's assume you're an airline advertiser. According to the W.R. Simmons "Media Imperatives" study, 33.4% of all adults are "Magazine Imperatives" (heavy magazine readers and relatively light viewers of TV), while 38:7% are "Television Imperatives" (heavy viewers of TV, light readers of magazines).

This same study indicates that 46.5% of domestic air travelers are "Magazine Imperatives," and they account for 51% of the total volume. To reach them efficiently, it is obviously imperative to use magazines with some degree of frequency.

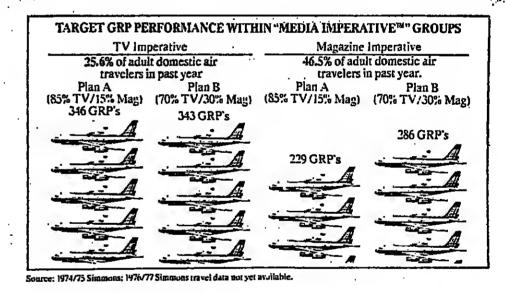

Newsweek recently analyzed the national media schedule of an airline that concentrated heavily in TV. The target market was adults who took a domestic air trip in the past year.

A computer run—Plan 'A'—analyzed the airline's average 4-week national media schedule -85% in network television, 15% in magazines.

A second computer run-Plan 'B'-increased the magazine budget to 30% of the total, decreased network television to 70%. The same TV programs and magazines in which the airline had advertised were used.

TV consisted of: Today, NCAA Football, ABC NFL Football, NBC Sunday Mystery Movie, Ironside, NBC Monday Movie, Movin' On, and Tonight.

The magazines were: Newsweek, Time, U.S. News & World Report, Better Homes and Gardens, Cosmopolitan, Ebony, Glamour, Golf, Golf Digest, Good Housekeeping, Mademoiselle, National Geographic, The New Yorker, Reader's Digest, Saturday Review, Sports Illustrated, and TV Guide.

Now for the results.

Plan 'B' showed a 12% increase in GRP's, a 6% increase in reach and frequency and a 10% decrease in CPM. All without spending a penny extra.

Against the "Magazine Imperative" group (46.5% of the market), Plan 'B' increased GRP's by 25% (286 vs. 229). It increased reach 10%. It increased frequency 15% (3.1 vs. 2.7).

And the same schedule showed a loss of only 1% in GRP's against the "TV Imperative" group.

FOR NEW YORK STATE

Study Says Economic Stagnation Has Already Cost Government $6 Billion in Taxes Since 1973

SYRACUSE, Dec. 6 (AP)—New York's economic stagnation has cost the state and local governments more than $6 billion in potential tax revenues since 1973, a Syracuse University political scientist reports.

Public services have been largely maintained despite the losses by discretionary changes made in the state and local tax structures, according to the political scientist, Roy Bahi.

But New Yorkers should not expect public services to be maintained at curreat levels much longer, Mr. Bahl said. "The fiscal outlook for New York State is very, very grim, even with an austere budget," he added.

The strain on New York's economic resources has reached the point where the state's tax base can no longer be expected to support the nation's best pubschools and most extensive social vices, Mr. Bahl said.

"The day when New York State can afford the most advanced educational system and social services is probably gone," Mr. Bahl declared in a recent inter-

Although the economic decline has been most dramatic in New York City, it is a deep-seated problem in evidence throughout the state and the Northeast,

Mr. Bahl, who has been studying New York State's fiscal problems for the last five years, is metropolitan studies direc tor at Syracuse University's Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs. The economic decline, which became apparent around 1969, is not a passing problem that will soon go away, he said, but a long-term shift of the state's economy, which has reduced the state's ability to finance public programs.

"The economy of the state is moving toward a lower equilibrium," be said. "It is on the way down and has not bottomed

But the spending of the state and local governments has not responded to the slowing economy and shrinking tax base, Mr. Bahl said. Although the state's population increased less than 3 percent from 1963 to last year, spending in that period rose by more than 150 percent, Mr. Bahl said in a recent report.

"In the last decade, for every 1 percent increase in personal income, there has been a 1.84 percent increase in state and local spending in New York," Mr. Bahl

Spending Being Adjusted

Meanwhile, in the rest of the country, state and local government spending increased an average of 1.47 percent for every I percent increase in personal income. During that time, personal income in the rest of the country was growing 20 times faster than in New York, Mr.

Figures for the current year indicate an adjustment in spending is now being made, Mr. Bahl said, but officials in New York State were slow to respond to the economic slowdown.

No one knows how far down the state's economy is going to drop, Mr. Bahl said, but statistics show that the gap between nation's growth rate has widened in re-

Mr.Bahl insists that the economic de-cline is not a problem limited to New York City. He said:

It is a myth that the decline and loss of jobs is a New York City thing, or limited to a few sections of the state, and that the rest of the state's economy is not bad off. That's not true.

"While the city is declining faster than the state, the state is losing more than its share. . a lot of the state's growth is in the New York City suhurbs. The decline is pretty deep-seated and runs across all lines of the state's economy." ... By 1981, Mr. Bahl said, New York State could be wrestling with a very serious deficit.

New York Opposes Paying in Advance For Alaskan Gas

By EDWARD COWAN Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5 — New York State has told the Federal Power Com-Size has told the Federal Power Commission that consumers should not be required to pay years in advance for natural gas from Alaska's North Slope. Instead, New York suggested in papers filed Friday, the big oil companies that own the North Slope gas reserves should help finance a $10 billion pipeline or run tha risk that the project won't be licensed and the gas will go unsold.

The New York State Puolic Service Commission said that an overland pipeline route through Canada's Mackenzie River valley, the Arctic Gas consortium proposal, appeared to be a better delivery system than two other proposals also being considered by the F.P.C.

New York said that such a delivery system would be more reliable, would bring more gas to the United States and would be more likely to make Alaskan gas available to markets in the Midwest and East.

The two other proposals, New York

The two other proposals, New York said, would bypass the gas in Canada's Mackenzie River delta. New York suggested that this gas might be delivered to United States markets. Other analysts have said that Canada would not export the as such but that its availability to Canadian markets would diminish the risk of cutbacks of gas exports from Liberta to the Pacific Northwest.

Alberta to the Pacific Northwest.

Dopposing the Treasury Department's view, New York said a Federal guarantee that financing would be available in the event of a cost overrun "is far preferable to imposing the risk upon existing gas consumers." New York said, "This is the kind of guarantee that the Federal Government is peculiarly equipped to provide at little ultimate risk to the taxpayer." The Federal Power Commission normally awards pipeline certificates. In this case, however, a 1976 hill signed hy President Ford provides for a joint decision by the President and the Congress perhaps a year or so from now. The Ford Administration is intensely interested in bringing the gas to market, even at high cost, hecause it would diminish the country's need for imported oil,

Since the start of police manpower cuts, serious crime has increased in the city, but it was also climbing steadily when the department was being beavily reinforced in the 1960's. Many studies by criminalogists indicate that the eize of a police force has little influence on preventing crime and that economic and social conditions may be more important.

In the current fiscal year, which ends June 30, 1977, the police bave been allo-cated $647 million for uperating expenses. This is $31 million less than in the previous year and $94 million below the budget of two years ago.

Another $220 million is earmarked this year for mandatory pension payments.

Mr. Zuccotti, who has been scrutinizing the police budget and the department's policies, said, "There is room fur additional economies." In an interview, be said that the police were "doing a good job in crime control," but he added that further savings could be achieved through "reorganization, consolidation and new management techniques."

Although Mr. Zuccotti declined to specify the size of the next financial cut, well-informed police officials anticipate a decrease of about $20 million.

Declining to cite areas that might be trimmed, Mr. Codd said: "There is nn magic number for manpower, no absolute low number. The number we can live with depends upon what the people of the city want from the department."

The Fire Department has also undergone unprecedented internal overhauling in the last twn years. The number of personnel has been cut from 13,400 to 10,800, mostly through attrition. Eight fire houses have been closed and 16 fire companies or units have been abolished. companies, or units, have been abolished.

In another major economy move, the department now operates most engine companies with a driver and four men, instead of five. Ladder trucks have a driver and five men, instead of six. driver and five men, instead of six.

These reductions have provoked widespread murale problems and grumbling

The menpower cuts have coincided

Commissioner O'Hagan said, however, that the cuthacks bad probably increased the property damage from fires. "It's difficult to measure, and we don't have figures, but you have to assume that the marginal increase in response tima has affected property lasses," be said. Another critical department function, inspections, has also been hampered by budget restrictions. Since 1974, the inspection force, which concentrates on finding fire violations in public buildings, has been reduced from 180 men to 115. Commissioner O'Hagan said there was "nn connection" between a fire in the Bronx last October that killed 25 persons at an uninspected Puerto Rican social club and the losses in the watchdog inspection unit.

"We have to acknowledge that our general ability to serve the public is restrained by the cuts, but I think that we've allocated them in a way that they have had a minimal impact," he said. Codd Policies Questioned .

Mr. O'Hagan's managerial performance has got high grades from City Hall's fiscal experts. In contrast, Commissioner Codd's policies have been more closely questioned.

AUCT and Winner Suggests Innovation

Tuesday, Dec repting the Phi Beta Kappa award Les -- ing ct | the Louis B. Wright, former director e Folger Shakespeare Library, yesy urged the innovation of support aditional learning. He warned that Wordline, let expended oo less worthy 'innova-than one cares to remember."

A William A. Vincent of Michigan University told delegates assemation the Williamsborg Conference that students prefer "fun" ses, with lots of student participal and oo competition. He reported the most popular course on his campus was "human sexuality." since "it replies to student desires—the de-sire to express themselves and to talk about things they know."

"Relevance and with-it-ry" completined Joseph Epstein, editor of The American Scholar, the society's quarterly. "Can a student get a C in 'theories of play' or an A in 'deviant behavior'?" he asked.

In the quarterly Mr. Epstein writes as 'Aristides—he who was known to ancient Athens as The Just, and who was just too much for his subjects. To commemorate the society's bicentenniabout things they know.

commemorate the society's hicentennial, the letter-day Aristides urged that others join him as "language cranks" and fight to save the English language.

He found timorous allies all over the map. When the chairman of Phi Beta Kappa's Middle Atlantic District (New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Dela-ware) spoke of "agendae" as though that were the plural, the membership winced, but ever so discreetly, so as not to offend.

Hunter College's Carolyn Eisele, member of Phi Beta Kappa's national executive, recalled the glorious era of student revolt when some of those elected to membership rejected what they considered an establishment hooor. "During the revolution we had a meeting each year." she said, "but that was to save our skins."

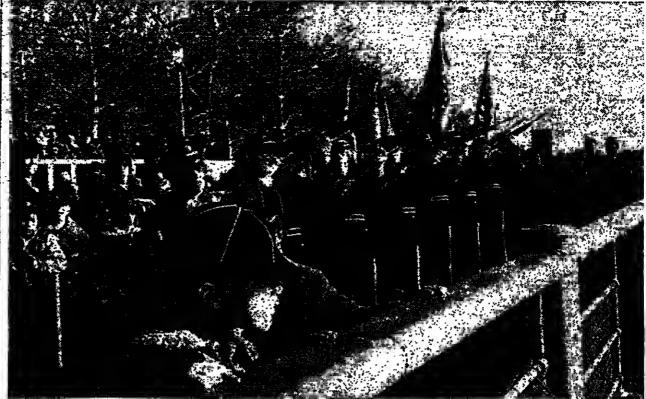

Mothers Want It for Their Boys "Mothers now call me up to say."
I want my boy to make Phi Beta of Lebman College. "If he wants to

"I don't feel this organization func-"I don't feel this organization functions effectively," complained another delegate, and Prof. Charles F. Main, of Rutgers, rejoined. "Mea culpa is all that one can say shout that charge."
But others abandoned Latin for plain speech. Called on to report on Phi Beta Kappa at City College, Samoel Middlebrook, an emeritus professor of English, reported "There's more talk then lish, reported, "There's more talk than action, which is not unusual."

Thanks to the inflation of grades, it is increasingly difficult for Phi Beta Kappa to know what to do, let alone where to turn, for the roughly 10 per-cent of each graduating class choseo as new members. How to compare the fellow who gets A in "Star Trek" (a romance language course et Michigan State) with another at the top of the class in astrophysics? One way, practiced the last three years, is to admit fewer members.

A professor from Indiane University described attempts to devise e foolproof computer index discriminating among courses and discounting professorial largesse, Stanford's delegate described his chapter's complex selection system, which includes course evaluation by students elected to Phi Beta Kappa in the junior year. Many dele-gates suggested the society should exert stronger pressure in fevor of higher ecademic standards.

At the end of the session that evoided

Howard K. Swearer, president-designate of Brown University, announced that his panel, heving viewed the behavior of the delegate audieoce— whispering, stiffed yawns, font-shuf-fling, outright departures—was award-ing it a grade of A minus.

A Matter of Money, Not Glory

Characteristically, much of the talk at the first plenary session dealt oot with vanished glory or departed delegates but with possible conflict of interest as members voted to reonburse themselves for food and botel bills. Suddenly the great days of convivial debate returned, as some stood firm on principle (oo mooey, thank you), and others tried to rationalize pleasure. When one delegate spoke of Puritan standards, Prof. Richard H. Hiers, who teaches Bible and ethics at the University of Florida, noted that the Puritans believed the prosperity was the lot of the virtuous. By meeting's end on Tues-day the united chapters will get around to discussing admission of new chapters. Eleven were recommended this year-including Baylor, the University of California at San Diego and Louisi-ana State. A number of others—finances precarious, library inadequate, standards deficient-bave already been rejected. One college has turned the tables on the society by rejecting lt. whelmingly to dethrone the sovereign masculine in favor of sexiess language. Belatedly it appeared that formal amendments left untouched what the University of Virginia's Prof. Edgar F. Shannon stigmatized as "two unmiti-gated 'hims.'" The officers promptly agreed to emergency surgery without benefit of delegate vote.

Honoring its devotion to rhetoric, Phi Beta Kappa had commissioned e bicen-tennial oratorio, and its libretto was rich with snippets from earlier poetry and immigrant speech. Sample: "Ah, me bucko and is it County Cork you're from? Landsman, vus macht a yid?"

There was also a bicentennial poem, by Melville Cane, e 97-year-old New York poet and lawyer. "May they be well-remembered!" he urged, lifting laureates of the society. "May their laureates of the society. "May their spirit shine-On those who follow-Through the vale of time."

In Mr. Cane's student days, the Phi Beta Kappa key was practical as well as ornamental, since it was used to wind watches. Those days are gone— and in fact only e minority of delegates bere showed their keys. Prof. John Hope Franklin, president of the society, never wears bis. He thought of making an exception for this great year, but couldn't bring himself to extricate the key from his collection of plaques, certificates and 49 honorary degrees.

A Wellesley professor has plumped for the idea of issuing two little keys, to be worn as earrings, but Phi Beta Kappa is finding it hard enough to maintain its standards without even thinking about raising its sites.

200 Rally in Bronx

More than 200 Bronx residents, mostly derly, crowded into the auditorium of the St. Philip Neri Roman Catholic Church yesterday afternoon to hear! emotional indictments of the State Legis-lature, the judicial system and law-en-forcement officials for failure to pro-tect them from crime.

Every mention of capital punishment mandatory sentences for juveniles and tougher punishment for crime againstthe elderly was greeted by the audience with enthusiastic applause. The conference was designed to bring the elderly together with legislators, police officers and crimical-justice officials to discuss solutions to increasing crimicals.

solutions to increasing crime.
"I want the right to live without being a prisoner in my apartment," said. Eleanor Murray, who is 73 years old and has lived in the Bronx for 40 years. "We're at the desperation point cow. I'm truly afraid to go out at night." Biaggi Sees a 'Crisis'

Representative Mario Biaggi, Democrat of the Bronx, who was one of the panelists at the conference at 3025 Grand. Concourse, in the Bedford Park area, set the tone for much of the advice when he urged the audience to "keep it bot"

for their legislators.

"There's a crisis," he said. "The law-enforcement structure has failed the: people of New York City. The Legislature hasn't done its job representing its constitutents."

Mr. Biaggi said that the people of New York State had repeatedly asked for a death penalty in the state and for tougher penalties and mandatory sentences for juvenile offenders but that the Legislature had not passed these, neasures. "Legislators speak with forked tongues," Mr. Biaggi declared. "They tellyou they're for these measures, and then they vote them down. Coovince them. your interest iso't temporary. Keep at them. Watch how they vote."

Other legislators at the conference. such as State Senator John Flynn, Assemblyman-elect George Friedman and Councilman Gennaro L. Crispino, urged the elderly to support measures in the Legislature to lower the age for juvenile criminals to 14, establish a capital-punshmeot statute, make the previous records of juveniles available to judges who are sentencing them and increase the punishment for offenders who attack elderly citizens, regardless of the offend-

Death Penalty Backed

Wheo Assemblymao-elect Friedman mentiooed capital punishment and said that it might "deter some of these animals who bave oo regard for buman life." the audience erupted in loud and emotionai applause.

A police officer gave advice about prevention of crime, a State Supreme Court justice explained problems of the judicial system, and legislators said they would help the 52d Precinct Community Councll compile information on voting rec-ords so the elderly could pressure their legislators effectively.

"The biggest problem is the fear of crime," said Detective Thomas Sullivan, who is with the Bronx Senior Citizen Robbery Unit. "People are scared to death. We have to get senior citizen's back into the mainstream."

65th Annual Campaign Opens With $406,400 From Estates, Trust Funds and 225 Contributors

The New York Times Neediest Cases Fund started its 65th annual appeal yesterday with $406,400.15 already donated by estates, trust funds and 225 contribu-

Established in 1912 by the late Adolph S. Ochs when he was the publisher of The Times, the fund has been aiding thousands of unfortunate individuals throughout the metropolitan area. Contributions will help support the work of eight private social-service agencies.

The appeal will he made only in the columns of The Times. There will be no outside solicitation of any kind. All expenses for the fund ere paid by The Times. As has been customary since 1970, lists of all donors will not be published.

The ennual campaign for contributions takes place only from December through February, but the fund provides help throughout the yeer for thousands of additional cases. Last year, for the sixth yeer in a row, gifts surpassed $1 million. A total of 10,664 persons donated $1,-

An early donor who has been for many years a supporter of the annual appeal sent along a card with his contribution, which may express the thoughts of many others. The donor, Morris O. Alprin, an attorney of 6 East 45th Street, said:

"As in many, many years past I am sending this card to my friends-and my check to your most worthy cause. Bless you all for this great humanitarian activ-

From across the country and, frequently, from overseas, the fund is the recipient of gifts. Such is one received from Mark D. Weiner of Ann Arbor, Mich, Mr. Weiner, who sent the fund a check for $50, said he had been away from the city for two years hut wanted his contrihution to help "the success of the fund and the people of New York City."

Contributions can be made anonyin the name of the donor. Gifts and bequests are deductible for income-tax and estate-tax purposes.

Checks should he made payable to the New York Times Neediest Cases ally eligible for the special classes signed Fund and seot to P.O. Box 5193, Church up. Street Station, New York, N.Y. 10249, or to any of the agencies listed.

Special Class Offer To Drunken Drivers Gains in New York

ALBANY, Dec. 5 (AP)—More than half of the drunken drivers convicted in New York State during the last year chose to take special classes rather than give up their license for e year, the State Motor Vehicle Department reported over the weekend.

Drunken drivers who choose the class-room get instruction on alcohol problems and safe driving. Most get full driving privileges back after completing the

TV: Baryshnikov, Johnny Cash and 'Feather' Are On Tonigh

By JOHN J. O'CONNOR

Television is nothing if not incredible or, if you will, ludicrous in its variety. Uousual additions to tonight's schedule include Mikhail Baryshnikov, Johnny Cash and something called "Feather and Father," a concoction that will soon become a regular weekly series.

Mr. Baryshnikov is featured in public television's "In Performance at Wolf Trap" series, recorded last summer at the performing arts park near Washington. Without becoming emmeshed in a tedious disquisition on whether the "experience" of dance can be successfully transplanted from the elitist stage to the grubby television screen, it might simply be suggested that anyone interested in dance should tune in to this hour, which begins at 9.

With its close-ups and glimpses of backstage activity, television brings its own unique contributions to the experience of dance. And, as directed intelli-gently by Stan Lathan, this special maintains a helpful balance hetween the performance as public event and the television format as showcase for nikov left the Soviet Uoion and the Kirov Ballet in 1974 while on a tour of Canada. He has established himself as a dancer of the very first ranknot as breathtakingly reckless as a Rudolf Nureyev, perhaps, but also not as uneven. Mr. Baryshnikov is stunning in his control and diversity.

Supported on this special by Gelsey Kirkland, Martine van Hamel and Marianna Tcherkassky, all of the Ballet. Theater, he is seen in two pas dedeux, from "Coppelia" and "Don Opixote" (both with a superh Miss Kirkland), plus the complete "Le Spectre de la Rose" and sections of Twyla Tharp's "Push Comes to Shove." In between, Mr. Baryshnikov has a solo in "Vestris," a marvelous dance and mime portrait of Auguste Vestris, a 19th-century dancer. This is a clever collection of dances, hrilliantly performed.

Johnny Cash is on CBS at 9 with the "Johnny Cash Christmas Special," taped in and around Nashville and including shots of the singer's farm and palatial home in Tennessee. Dispensing with his familiar black costume for something more cheerful in varying shades of gray, Mr. Cash smiles quite a hit and offers the electronic equivsient of an old-fashioned sing-song. The first half-hour has him wandering about and singing in the beautiful outdoors with Roy Clark and Tony Orlando, who plays the role of goofy city slicker. The second half is a "guitar" pull," in which the entire Cash family and special guests perform in what is supposed to be the Cash living room.

Merie Travis plays his guitar. Barbara Mandrell, who could take over at a moment's notice for Mary Ray Place in "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman," plays her steel guitar and sings. And the Rev. Billy Graham gets up to retell the story of "The Luck of Roaring Camp." It's all very proper and curiously dull. Everybody is so well behaved that no one seems to be having a good time. The gathering ends abruptly with Mr. Cash wishing that "His peace live in your homes and in your hearts," a wish that is immediately followed by a commercial break.

"Feather and Father," on ABC at 8, is less dull toan dumb. Stephanie Powers is Feather Danton, a lawyer who wouldn't think of using unquestionable means to win a case. Unfortunately, her father, Harry, played by Harold Gould, who used to be Rhoda's nice father, is a con man, oblivious to legal and ethical considerations. He and his moti band of grifters and bunco artists w evidently keep riding to the rescue poor honest Feather.

This evening, an Air Force gener devises an elaborate alibi while reing off to commit "vehicular homici on his civilian accomplice in a defen contract rip-off." Feather gets suscious, and father is recruited to do! own rip-off duty. Father does have certain panache. "Their syllogism, rmine," he tells the geoeral aminh explaining how the authorities are fir ing him the logical suspect. And he smartly aware of cliches, announci it'a "another proverbial oali in yo proverbial coffin." "Feather and Far er" looks like another proverbial d in television's proverbial wasteland.

TENSIONS BOIL OVER WHEN SUME

COMES TO DINNER

The hidden years revealed.

An outrageous eccentric all his life, Howard Hughes never stopped making news. But none so captured the headlines of the world's press, or the imaginations of the public, as did the events surrounding his last years and his dramatic death.

Now, exclusively in this week's TIME, you can read the bizarre facts, not only behind Hughes' death, but of his life during those reclusive years when his obsession for privacy—and power—made him a legend.

In extensive excerpts from a forthcoming Random House book by James Phelan called Howard Hughes: The Hidden Years, TIME reveals how Hughes had shrunk three inches from his 6'4" frame and weighed only 90 pounds...how drugs dominated his lonely existence...how his fear of germs became a fixation.

Here, for the first time, are the accounts of intimates in the Hughes retinue who lived most closely to the mysterious billionaire. "Sometimes Hughes would sit for hours, silent and brooding, in his little bedroom. He would gather the long hair streaming down his back, pull it up over the top of his head, then let it fall, gather it up, let it fall..."

This incredible story—out in advance of its general publication—gives TIME readers rare insight into an enigmatic and tortured personality who, after death, still continues to make news. It is another example of why more people, in more countries, get their news from TIME than from any other single source.
